Briand, Premier Sixth Time, Faces Hardest Task Of His Career

Viviani, Cabinet Head's Predecessor, Declares New Official Will Not Be Hampered By Internal Rows

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, Jan. 17.—M. Briand has taken over the reins of power. The following additional Cabinet appointments are announced, completing M. Briand's Ministry:

Justice: M. Bonnevoy.

Public Instruction: M. Leon Berard.

Public Works: M. Le Trocquer.

Liberated Territories and Reparations: M. Loucheur.

Agriculture: M. Lefebvre de Prey.

Commerce and Industry: M. Dior.

Labor: M. Daniel Vincent.

Public Health: M. Leredu.

Pensions: M. Maginot.

The new Ministry includes three members of the late Cabinet—MM. le Trocquer, Albert Sarraut and Maginot—and two who take office for the first time. The Ministers are adherents of the Republican Democratic Entente. M. Bonnevoy belongs to the Republican-Democratic Left, M. Barthou to the Republican Left, M. Loucheur to the Radical-Socialist group, and MM. Albert Sarraut and Aristide Briand to the Republican-Socialist group.

SIX TIMES PREMIER

The new Premier was born at Nantes, on March 28, 1862, and now occupies the Premiership for the sixth time. It is recalled that he was one of the leading artisans of victory, and one of the first to foresee the results of the Salonika expedition. He was a stubborn defender of this expedition, which brought about finally the capitulation of Bulgaria, the peace with Turkey, and the downfall of Austria, which was shortly followed by that of Germany.

Writing in the Petit Journal ex-Premier Viviani says: "I will be permitted to an intimate witness of this crisis to say that M. Briand has done nothing to bring upon himself this burden, and that he was ready to accept the premiership of anyone who might be chosen for it. He will require the whole experience acquired in the course of 30 years of civil and parliamentary struggles to face the complex situation of today."

FACES HARD TASK

Having emphasised the hearty welcome that the new Cabinet is assured in the Chamber and Senate, M. Viviani declares that the question of reparations, the disarmament of Germany and the destruction of war material, form an indissoluble whole, intimately bound up with the execution of the Versailles Treaty.

The economic situation of Europe, he adds, requires the closest co-operation of the Allies, and France is about to show, through her experts at Brussels, that she has a thorough understanding of the problem of European reconstruction. M. Viviani, in conclusion, gives the assurance that the new Government will not be hampered in its actions by petty personal squabbles in regard to domestic policy.

AUSTRIANS HAVE FUNDS FOR MONTH MORE OF ACTION

(Reuter's Service)

London, Jan. 18.—With reference to the recent report from Berlin, to the effect that the Austrian Government intended shortly to hand over the administration of the country to the Allied Reparations Commission, official circles in London have now received a telegram from Vienna, stating that the Chancellor is taking a more cheerful view of the financial situation, and that, according to present indications, the Government will be able to carry on for another month.

GREEKS DEFEATED

(Reuter's Service)

Constantinople, Jan. 17.—The Nationalists claim to have defeated the Greeks, north-west of Eskisher, and forced them to retreat on the whole line, with heavy losses, including 800 prisoners.

MILITARY ARE TAKEN AWAY FROM DUBLIN

Troops Withdrawn From City After Occupation Lasting 36 Hours

EXECUTION SUSPENDED

Appeal Is Allowed From Death Sentence By Court Martial

(Reuter's Service)

London, January 17.—President de Valera, who was recently stated to be preparing a manifesto which would possibly pave the way to peace, has sent a letter to the Lord Mayor of Dublin, appealing for unity "to meet the present threat to our existence."

London, Jan. 18.—The troops investing Dublin have been withdrawn after 36 hours occupation.

The military operations in Dublin have isolated the High Court, which has today been hearing an appeal by a Cork man, named Murphy, against a court-martial sentence of death, for participation in an ambush.

APPEAL GRANTED

Leave of appeal was granted by the Chief Justice after a strong agitation on behalf of Murphy, whose innocence is asserted. The Court adjourned the application till January 24 and suspended the execution which should have been carried out on the 19th till the 26th instant. The grant of an appeal against a court-martial sentence is without precedent.

A number of arrests have been made recently in Dublin in connection with the murders of officers on November 21, and it is expected that courts-martial will begin to sit at the end of the month to try these cases.

OUTLAWS SURPRISED

A communique states that a detachment of the Essex Regiment surprised a party of men who were preparing an ambush at Timoleague, Co. Cork. After an exchange of fire, 25 civilians were captured. There were no casualties among the troops.

London, Jan. 17.—Lieut.-Colonel l'Estrance Malone, R.A.F. Liberal M.P. for East Leyton, who was sentenced in December to six months' imprisonment in the second division, for "having spoken words likely to cause sedition and disaffection" at a pro-Bolshevik meeting at the Albert Hall, appealed against this sentence, but the appeal has been dismissed.

Representatives of the various colleges, including St. John's Shanghai, Nanyang, Fu-tan, Medhurst and the Law School of Soochow University, met Thursday and elected Mr. P. T. Zung of St. John's as chairman; Mr. C. T. T'u of Shanghai College, vice-chairman and Mr. Jameson Y. Chang of Nanyang as the English secretary.

Efforts will be made to secure the co-operation of the whole student body in Shanghai of the middle school and college grade for Tag Day.

An important meeting will be called this week when delegates from the middle schools and colleges will meet to make definite plans for Tag Day.

YOURIN MISSION IN RUPTURE WITH PEKING, REPORT

Returns Chinese Government's Communication Regarding Guarantees Of Protection

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Jan. 18.—After a complete cessation of the informal negotiations which took place between M. Yourin and the Bureau of Russian Affairs, the Yourin Mission recently requested that they be resumed. It was thereupon informed by the Chinese Government that the latter was still awaiting practical guarantees regarding protection of the lives and property of Chinese in Siberia.

The Yourin Mission then returned the Chinese Government communication. Its action is regarded as a withdrawal of its promise to provide such guarantees and virtually amounts to a rupture of unofficial relations with the Chinese Government.

LAWYERS ARGUE FURBUSH MURDER CASE TOMORROW

Testimony Ended In Hearing Following Shooting Of R. F. Hazelton

ACCUSED AGAIN ON STAND

Defense Tries To Establish Basis For Insanity Plea To Be Offered

Taking of testimony in the Furbush murder trial was brought to an end yesterday afternoon in the United States Court for China and the final outcome of the trial probably will be known tomorrow as the time for the presentation of arguments was set by Judge Lobingier at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

A considerable portion of yesterday's hearing was devoted to the cross-examination of Henry B. Furbush, the accused seaman, by Maj. C. P. Holcomb, United States District Attorney. This began in the morning after two witnesses had testified briefly for the defense.

Through the testimony of those witnesses who were called for the defense, Mr. M. L. Heen, Furbush's attorney, sought to establish a basis for the plea of temporary insanity that, it is understood, will be developed in the course of the argument tomorrow morning. Expert testimony along this line was called for from Dr. T. B. Dunn, who was again called. Strong objection arose from the prosecution when the physician was asked to describe the symptoms of a person under the influence of chloral, morphia and like drugs.

TESTIMONY EXCLUDED

After some argument this line of testimony was ruled out and the witness was limited to describing the effects of alcohol on the human system.

Dr. Dunn examined the accused's eye and the scar above it, stated that the evidence of the blow he had was so slight that he would not care to pass an opinion on this particular case. This, however, witness would say, that if accused had received a hard blow on the spot where the scar was, it would have had the effect of rendering him unconscious or at any rate irresponsible.

Judge Lobingier here interposed, and asked Dr. Dunn whether, in his opinion, it would have been possible for a man to walk rapidly and dispose of a weapon in the conditions suggested by the defence. Witness was of the opinion that the alleged condition and the actions of the accused were not consistent.

OTHER WITNESSES

Testimony concerning the quality of liquor sold in the Trenches which the defense sought to elicit from Mr. W. J. Gande was ruled out as the witness could state nothing concerning the character of the liquor dispensed at the El Dorado. The Court also ruled out testimony that the defense asked for from Detective-Inspector P. W. Reeves concerning the verdict of an inquest over a seaman who had died from the effects of alcohol in Hongkew.

In the course of the morning session Mr. Heen offered a motion asking that the testimony of certain additional witnesses be admitted to confute statements that had been made on the stand, but this motion was withdrawn at the opening of the afternoon session and the testimony of a Mr. Hughes that was to have been presented was not offered.

FURBUSH BACK ON STAND

In the cross-examination of the accused seaman the events in general of the night of the shooting were reviewed. This cross examination was conducted by Major Holcomb as follows:

Q—Mr. Furbush, where is your home town in the states?

VIRGINIA IS HOME

A—My home at present is Norfolk, Va.

Q—What time did you get in to Shanghai on the night of the December 13?

A—The ship docked shortly after six o'clock, a few minutes after.

Q—And you worked about five hours that day?

A—I had worked five hours that day.

Q—What time did you come ashore?

A—About eight o'clock.

Q—Who was with you besides Quinn?

A—When I came ashore?

Q—Yes.

A—There was nobody with me except the ricsha man, that is all.

Q—Did any shipmates join you after you went ashore?

A—I met one of the firemen in

Persian-Russo Treaty Plan

Country May Be Handed Over To Soviet

Abdication Of Shah Denied

-:- Shah Of Persia -:-

(Reuter's Service)

London, January 17.—Persian official circles in London have received no confirmation of the reported abdication of the Shah. A telegram from Teheran of yesterday's date contains no mention of any political upheaval. Other circles in close touch with Persian affairs entirely discredit the report.

It is officially stated that the Shah is not abdicating. On the contrary, he is forming a new, strong Cabinet for the purpose of National Defense.

Reuter learns, however, that the situation in Persia is precarious. The Persians, having failed to ratify the Anglo-Persian agreement, which would have enabled them to straighten out their affairs, think that the best alternative is an agreement with Soviet Russia. Although the latter has not yet been signed practically it hands over Persia to the Soviet, which has the right under this agreement to invade Persia whenever it is pleased to regard the country as threatened.

The Persians realise that they are not getting anything out of the Soviet, but owing to apprehensions for the future, they want to keep on good terms with Moscow.

The British evacuation of North Persia will begin in the near future, but there cannot be any question of allowing Bolshevist interference in South Persia, owing to its proximity to British territory.

ADMIRAL ON NEW ORLEANS EN ROUTE TO VLADIVOSTOK

Gleaves And Naval Board Will Investigate Langdon Case

PASSES SHANGHAI

Head Of Asiatic Fleet Transships To Cruiser Off Woosung

The U.S.S. New Orleans, until yesterday flagship of the Yangtsze Patrol, sailed from Shanghai early yesterday morning to meet the U.S. destroyer Elliott at sea. The Elliott was scheduled to arrive at Woosung last evening with Admiral Albert Gleaves, commander of the Asiatic Fleet, his staff and members of the Court of Inquiry which will conduct an investigation of the death of Lieutenant W. H. Langdon, who was killed at Vladivostok on January 10 by a Japanese soldier.

The New Orleans was scheduled to sail for Vladivostok and the Elliott is expected to arrive here early this morning for a short stay in port.

PRESS IS GUARDED

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, Jan. 17.—The Japanese press is guarded in its references to the shooting of Lieut. Langdon at Vladivostok, owing to the absence of complete information.

The general opinion is, however, that the sentry was probably justified, and merely carried out his duty.

The Hochi quotes a War Office official as expressing doubt as to the report that General O-i has ordered Japanese sentries not to challenge, stating that it is inconceivable that such an exception would be made, as it would undermine Japanese morale.

The official is stated to have added that the arrest and court-martialling of the sentry is a matter of form, and the invariable rule in such cases. If he is guilty he will be appropriately punished, but it will probably be found that he was acting on the usual orders to sentries.

The military authorities here trust that the American military authorities will take a broad view of the matter, and not make it a question of "Japanese versus Americans," but of the sentry versus an unknown man.

EXPRESS REGRETS

Tokio, January 17.—A telegram from Manila reports: The Bulletin has had a leading article about the affair at Vladivostok (the gist of which may be translated from a Japanese text as follows):

It is quite satisfactory to those who are trying to effect good understanding among the people of the Far East to see that the authorities have expressed regrets speedily about the affairs and are doing their best to make up for the act of the sentry because those who are holding the affairs of Japan in hand are persons who are wise and intelligent and trying to solve the pending affairs between Japan and the United States in healthy measures. As we have fair views we remember that the present intelligent Japanese people are trying their best to avoid any serious misapprehension with the U. S. and the fact that they have frankly admitted the fault of the sentry proves our belief stronger because it is impossible to support or believe those who try to provoke at present.

PASSPORT REGULATION

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Jan. 18.—The Japanese Legation this afternoon informed the American Legation in a note, and will later inform the Diplomatic Corps, that the Japanese Government has decided to withdraw one of the regulations necessitating foreign passports along the South Manchurian Railway next month. This will not apply to the leased territory of Kwangtung.

Peking-Shanghai Air Mail Service Is Planned For May 1, Col. Holt Says

Sir Arthur Whitten Brown, Trans-Atlantic Aviator, Pays Tribute To China For Organising Commercial Aviation At Tiffin Yesterday

Before a large audience, Col. F. V. Holt, technical adviser to the Aeronautical Department of the Chinese Government gave an interesting address yesterday at the Carlton under the auspices of the Pan-Pacific Association and the Aero Club of Shanghai. Sir Arthur Whitten Brown, who flew across the Atlantic, and Colonel Tcheng Hung, Chief of the Military Affairs of the Aeronautical Department, also spoke.

Details of the proposed air line between Shanghai and Peking as well as the history of Chinese aviation were brought out in Colonel Holt's address.

Sir Arthur pointed out that the Chinese Government is the first government to develop aviation commercially and not in a military way.

Colonel Tcheng emphasised the importance of close co-operation between the department and the various communities in order to make the first air route a success.

Colonel Holt's speech was as follow:

Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen.

You have already heard quite enough about me from your chairman and I regret that I must say a little more.

I have been lent by the British Government to the Chinese Central Government to assist with the development of aviation in China. I have now been in Peking for about nine months.

I speak today firstly as a servant of the Chinese Central Government and secondly as an aviation enthusiast.

I should like you to forget my nationality and my unfortunate military training.

I am going to tell you of recent developments in aviation in North China and then give some details of the Shanghai-Peking air line which is going to be started this Summer.

PIONEER AIRMEN IN CHINA

Before 1913 there were several pioneers who did individual flights, Valcon, Z. Y. Lee, Feng Yu, Tom Gun and a Russian whose name I cannot find out. Their flights aroused general interest and it was due to them that in 1913 the Chinese General Staff started a Flying School at Nanyuan which was equipped and run by the French. They started with 12 Caudron biplanes and the necessary workshops.

There were two French pilots and two French mechanics and a great deal of flying was done. About 100 pilots were trained up to the standard of the prewar flying certificate and the machines were so well looked after that many of them were still fit to fly in 1920 although the School had been badly starved for spare parts and material during the war. A few of these aeroplanes played minor parts in various military expeditions during this time.

In 1919 another definite step was taken and contracts were made with two British firms. The Aeronautical Bureau of the Board of Communications, Gen. Ting Shih-yuan, bought six large Handley Pages, and the Aeronautical Department, Gen. Tinn Ching, bought about 150 training and commercial aeroplanes from Messrs. Vickers and contracted with them for the provision of the necessary ground staff to erect the machines and train the mechanics and pilots.

Terms Of Bank Loan To Railways Fixed At Peking

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, January 14.—Negotiations for the rolling stock loan of $6,000,000 between the Ministry of Communications and the Native Consortium of Bankers have been completed and the agreement awaits signature. The terms are: interest, eight percent per annum; discount, one percent; commission on bond sales, five percent; security, surplus of the Kin-Han railway not hypothecated for foreign loans.

STRICT SUPERVISION

The loan is concluded on the new principle of strict supervision of expenditure, and the purchase of the rolling-stock which is to be bought with it is to be in the hands of a joint commission of the bankers and the Ministry of Communications.

The Native Consortium is largely composed of native Shanghai and Tientsin banks. Although the loan amount is stipulated to be $6,000,000 it is understood that an amount of only $2,000,000 is to be guaranteed and advanced until bonds totaling a larger sum are taken up by the investing public.

WOULD WORK SOLDIERS

The "enlightened militarist," General Feng Yu-hsiang, has submitted a memorandum to the President advocating that troops should be employed in public works, and asking permission to direct his soldiers to undertake the construction of the Yenchow—Chowkaotien railway, a feeder line for the Kin-han in southern Honan.

Should the government see fit to allow him to utilise his troops in setting an example and precedent, he requests that competent engineers be despatched to direct them in the work.

OUTLINE PROGRAM

The President and Premier in conference have outlined the following program for dealing with military affairs: The various units in the army are to be reorganised so as to provide for a considerable disbandment. This program will be postponed in the case of troops at present in active service on the frontiers until they can be withdrawn from such service. The country should be divided into definite military areas superceding the present division of commands according to provinces.

General Chang Tso-lin held a conference of officers recently and the following questions are said to have been discussed: The reorganisation of the Fengtien Model Army, Defense of the Northeastern Frontier, garrisoning of the Chientao district so as to obviate further Japanese pretexts for invasion, and the possible necessity of sending military assistance to Hupeh which is being attacked by Southern forces.

Poor Chinese Flour For Central Europe Stirs Millers' Ire

(Reuter's Service)

London, Jan. 18.—The indignation of Liverpool millers has been aroused by a report to the effect that the Food Ministry is refusing to permit the export of flour to Central Europe unless a certain quantity of Chinese flour is also taken.

It is pointed out that there are a hundred thousand tons of Chinese flour at present in Great Britain, most of it in poor condition in consequence of its long storage.

itain Not To Drop Her Big Ship Policy

(Reuter's Service)

London, January 17.—The report that the Government has decided to abandon the big ship policy is described as unfounded. The Sub-Committee on Naval Construction has so far not reached a decision on the matter.

Bandits Shoot Up Texas Post Office

(U. S. Naval Radio through Reuter)

Dallas, Texas, Jan. 17.—Two clerks of a Post Office sub-station and a negro porter were shot and wounded by six bandits in automobiles, who escaped with two pouches containing paper money to the value of $28,000. One of the bandits was killed through the wrecking of an automobile.

Fiume Blockade To Be Raised At Once

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, Jan. 17.—Owing to the departure of the legionaries from Fiume, and the impending departure of d'Annunzio, General Caviglia has ordered the raising of the blockade by sea at 1 o'clock this afternoon, and by land at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Harding To Invite Parley Of Powers On Armaments

(Reuter's Service)

New York, Jan. 18.—The Washington correspondent of the New York Times confirms the report that immediately after his inauguration as President Mr. Harding will invite the powers to a conference on the restriction of armaments and the establishment of an international tribunal for the judicial settlement of international disputes.

Lawyers Argue Furbush Murder Case Tomorrow

the Savoy Hotel. That is the only shipmate that I recall seeing.

Q—The pistol that you admit borrowing from the engineer, who did you borrow that from?

A—The first assistant engineer.

Q—What kind of a pistol was it?

A—It was a .32 calibre automatic pistol.

NUMBER OF SHELLS

Q—Do you know how many shells it had in it?

A—I think it had seven or eight.

Q—Didn't you tell Quinn it had eight in it that night in the ricsha?

A—I believe I did.

Q—What was the first time you saw that pistol?

A—I do not remember just the first time I saw it. I saw it in the first assistant's room. I do not remember the date.

Q—Did your ship stop anywhere before it came to Shanghai?

A—Yes.

Q—Where?

A—It stopped at Panama over night and we stopped at Honolulu 24 hours.

Q—Did you borrow that pistol at Panama?

A—No sir, I did not go ashore at Panama. Nobody went ashore.

Q—Is it always customary for you when you go ashore to carry a pistol?

A—It is according to where I am at.

Q—Why did you carry a pistol ashore here?

A—On account of the locality and darkness of the streets. The streets were dark there.

Q—Had you ever been here before?

A—No sir.

Q—What prompted you, simply because the docks were dark to carry a gun?

WAS BLACKJACKED

A—I was on a ship one time where the second assistant engineer was blackjacked in returning to the ship in France. That is why I carried one.

Q—Well because a man was blackjacked do you think that justifies people in taking the law in their own hands and carrying pistols?

A—I don't know what the law is out here.

Q—You know under the American law you are not allowed to carry a pistol, don't you?

A—I think that is the law. I don't positively know it.

Q—And you knew you were not allowed to have one on the ship, don't you?

A—I have never seen any regulations to that effect.

Q—You have testified you didn't know what bad characters were about? Did you see any bad characters that you needed to use the pistol on?

A—I didn't see any before I went ashore, no.

CARRIED PISTOL

Q—When you were riding down in the ricsha in which pocket did you have the pistol?

A—I had it in my left side overcoat pocket.

Q—Are you ambidexterous or do you only use your left hand? Can you use either your right or left hand or only your left hand?

A—I use the left hand most of the time.

Q—You can use the right when you want to?

A—I do not use the right nearly as well.

Q—In handling a gun?

A—I do not know. I have not had enough experience on that.

Q—In throwing a ball can you throw with one hand equally as well as the other.

A—No sir.

Q—When you first went to the Tivoli Bar according to your testimony you had a drink apiece. You ordered a gin rickey I believe.

DRINK WAS WEAK

A—Yes.

Q—Did that gin rickey taste all right?

A—Well it tasted the same as most gin rickeys. It was weak if anything.

Court. Q—What are the peculiar constituents of that drink?

A—There is gin in it and some pieces of lemon and I do not know exactly what the rest is composed of.

Q—Why did you order that particular drink?

A—Why I like that drink better than any and in the past it has not had a very bad effect on me.

Q—You are in the habit of drinking them?

A—I have been in the habit in the past, yes. I drink that.

Q—And this particular drink that you got at the Tivoli was weaker than you have been in the habit of drinking.

A—It seemed weaker.

District Attorney. Q—It tasted good enough so you thought you would have another gin rickey.

A—It did not taste so good as that.

Q—You went to the Savoy Hotel from there, didn't you?

A—Yes.

Q—And you ordered there a gin rickey too?

A—I did.

Q—How was it?

A—It was all right.

Q—It tasted a little "moreish" so you wanted a little more?

A—Then I had a bottle of beer.

Q—One rickey and a bottle of beer?

A—Yes.

Q—Then when you went to the brothel on Fearon Road what did you order there?

DID NOT ORDER

A—I did not order anything.

Q—Who did order it?

A—I think Mr. Quinn or else they brought it up without ordering, I do not know for sure. They brought it in.

Q—Who paid for it?

A—I do not know.

Q—Didn't you have some argument about paying your bill in that brothel?

A—Yes, it was not over that though. I think Mr. Quinn paid for it.

Q—How long were you in that brothel?

A—I don't think I was there longer than eight or ten minutes.

Q—How long was Quinn there?

A—Four or five minutes longer than I was.

Q—And you stated yesterday in reply to questions of your counsel that you left the brothel and went over to an iron rail on the "river front" as you expressed it. Did you get a drink anywhere near that brothel while you were waiting?

A—No sir.

Q—When Quinn came down stairs from the brothel what did you and he do?

A—I gave the ricsha man some money. He said he wanted some chow. We got in the ricshas, then rode away.

Q—What place did you go to from there?

A—From there we told them to take us to an American bar, cafe.

Q—And he took you to the Astor Grill you stated yesterday?

A—But we stopped at a place between there, stopped at a Chinese tea house.

WEDDING INTERFERES

Q—What did you drink there?

A—Didn't drink anything.

Q—No tea?

A—No sir. There was a wedding going on when we left.

Q—From the Chinese tea house you went to the Astor Grill?

A—Yes.

Q—And what did you have there?

A—I had a gin rickey.

Q—Still tasted good, did it?

A—All right?

Q—And you wanted more?

A—I cold drink more, yes.

Q—And in the Astor Grill you had three gin rickeys you state.

A—Yes.

Q—Who was the gentleman who gave you this slip that you have just identified (Defendant's Exhibit 4, slip of paper with name of El Dorado on)?

A—It was a foreigner. I have not seen him since.

Q—Now after receiving the card or slip of paper with the El Dorado on you and Quinn went to the El Dorado?

A—We did.

Q—And who was with you then at that time?

A—There was nobody with us at that time.

Q—Just you two?

A—Just us two.

Q—There were not three together?

A—No sir.

DESCRIBES ACTIONS

Q—What did you do when you went there, did you discharge the ricsha coolies?

A—No, we told them to wait for us.

Q—When you went up stairs did you go immediately into the lavatory or what did you do?

A—I stopped in the cloak room, took off our coats and hats, and then went into the lavatory.

Q—And about that time you went for your pistol and put it in your coat pocket?

A—I went back into the lavatory and told Mr. Quinn that I did not think it was safe to leave it there because I didn't want to lose it and went back in the lavatory and put it in my pocket.

Q—Why did you think you might lose it there?

A—I did not know who might go through the pockets.

SAW NO BAD CHARACTERS

Q—And you took it because you were afraid you might lose it? Before you brought it to use in case there were bad characters around.

A—I did round the docks.

Q—But after you got to the El Dorado the reason you carried it in there was bcause you were afraid you would lose it?

A—Yes.

Q—Did you see any objectionable characters in the El Dorado.

A—I did not see any objectionable characters there.

Q—Did you see anybody at all in the El Dorado?

A—I saw about 25 or 30 people there. I didn't take close notice of them.

Q—Now yesterday when you were being examined by your counsel you testified that you and Quinn ordered drinks when you first went in the El Dorado?

A—Yes.

Q—Who paid for those drinks?

A—I did.

Q—How did you pay for them. What with?

A—I paid for them with Mexican money.

Q—Did they bring you a slip or written chit or what?

A—No sir.

Q—How much did they tell you they were?

A—They didn't tell me how much it was. I laid 60 cents on the table.

Q—Did they accept the 60 cents for the two drinks?

A—They did.

Q—And after those two drinks what did you do?

A—Sat there talking.

Q—And that was the time you spoke to Quinn about dancing with the girl or Quinn spoke to you?

A—Yes.

Q—Well did those drinks taste all right?

A—Apparently.

ORDERED ANOTHER

Q—You wanted more at any rate, did you? Ordered another you say?

A—Yes, ordered another.

Q—Who paid for the other?

A—I don't know. Mr. Quinn paid for that. We were taking turns paying for drinks, one man was not paying for all the drinks.

Q—And that was Quinn's turn, the second round in there?

A—Yes.

Q—Well was it after you had your first drink or your second drink that you went over to the stove there, to the other table?

A—I don't remember drinking the second drink. After drinking the first drink I can remember the second drink being set on the table. That is all.

Q—And you remember nothing since that first drink?

A—Only what I said yesterday. I have a faint recollection of an explosion.

Q—Prior to the time that you lost your mind and reason and everything else as you claim, did anybody strike you?

A—Before that time?

Q—Before that time when your mind was a blank.

A—They didn't strike me, not before I had that drink in the El Dorado, nobody struck me.

Q—Then up to the time when you say that you do not remember anything except that explosion that was in front of you, nobody had struck you.

A—I do not know.

MIND BECAME BLANK

Q—Nobody did strike you up to the time, the period, the moment, fixed by you when your mind became a blank. Nobody had struck you up to that time?

A—No.

Q—You are positive of that?

A—Positive.

Q—The next thing that you told your counsel you remembered was an explosion. Did that explosion startle you?

A—The explosion stunned me like something exploding right in front of my face.

Q—Then what did you do?

A—I don't know.

Q—Did you run or walk down those stairs?

A—I don't know.

Q—Do you remember talking to the marine or the sailor going along Jukong Road?

A—No sir.

Q—You remember picking out your hat and coat from Quinn's, don't you?

A—No sir.

Q—You don't remember anything?

A—The only thing I remember was somebody twisting my arm?

Q—Where was that?

A—It was out on the street somewhere, walking along somewhere.

WHO? IS THE GUILTY MAN?

Lawyers Argue Furbush Murder Case Tomorrow

I do not know just where it was.

Q—Walking fast or walking slow?

A—Walking a medium gait I guess. I don't remember well. I only remember walking a few steps.

Q—Was the man who was with you treating you roughly?

A—It was my arm.

Q—What did you say to him?

A—Told him to stop it.

Q—Did he stop it?

A—I guess so.

MEMORY FAILS

Q—You walked on then without him twisting your arm any more?

A—I don't know, I guess I walked. I don't know whether I walked or rode, I do not know anything about it.

Q—You are trying to remember everything? Are you telling the exact truth?

A—Yes.

Q—You have heard it testified that you remembered the name of your ship and your partner's name, haven't you?

A—I knew the name of my ship. Certainly I know the name of the ship I was on.

Q—You never forgot that? Now when you got up to the North Szechuen Road Police Station did they treat you kindly up there?

A—From what I can remember of it they treated me all right. I was handcuffed to a rail. A couple of fellows came up and asked me how I got hit and where the gun was.

Q—What did you tell them?

A—I told them I didn't know where I was hit. I told them that I didn't know where the gun was. I didn't have any gun.

Q—Did one of them ask you what was the matter with your eye and did you reply "Which eye"?

A—I might have. I don't remember whether it was afterwards they spoke about my eye.

Q—Wouldn't you know which eye? Did it hurt?

A—I didn't know at the time, no sir.

Q—When you were brought down to the American jail on the morning after the night that you are accused of killing Mr. Hazelton did you make any complaint about your eye to Mr. Craig or any one else connected with the American jail.

A—No sir.

Q—Did you give it any treatment?

A—I washed it off. That is all. Washed it off with water.

Q—To go back to the El Dorado for a minute. After you heard this explosion and went down the stairs and out into Jukong Road, immediately after the time you heard this explosion, did you fall in that walk?

A—I don't know.

Q—Did not walk up against a telephone or telegraph pole?

A—I don't know.

Q—You might have fallen?

A—I couldn't say. There was nothing on my clothes to indicate that I had fallen the next day. My clothes were not dirty.

Q—You might have walked into the telegraph or telepone pole.

A—I couldn't say.

Q—You might have.

A—I don't know.

Q—Do you remember you didn't?

A—I don't know anything about it.

Q—You say that there were eight shells in that pistol you borrowed? ment?

A—I think there was. I am not positively sure.

Q—You didn't count them?

A—No sir, I didn't.

Q—How do you know it was a 32-calibre?

A—I know the size of the shells.

Q—Was it fired once or twice in that cloak room?

A—I don't know.

Q—You heard the explosion?

A—All I heard was one explosion.

After this Mr. Heen called two Chinese boys as witnesses, but the Judge ruled that their testimony was inadmissible and there was long argument on this point.

C. B. Ludwig, jailer at the American jail, testified that he had noticed the cut or abrasion on Furbush's face the morning he was brought to the American jail, but that Furbush had not asked for treatment and none was given. That the two prisoners, Furbush and Quinn seemed still in a semi-intoxicated condition when he saw them first and he advised them to go to sleep and sleep off the liquor.

Mr. Francisco White was recalled and described Hazelton's personal appearance and mentioned that he was of "quiet habits."

After recess Mr. Heen stated that he had expected to put on further witnesses, but that he realised that perhaps their testimony would be inadmissible and would close his case, withdrawing a motion he had made before adjournment.

When the trial was resumed in the morning Dr. Thomas A. Dunn was recalled and asked certain hypothetical questions about condition of a person after a blow on the head. He testified that no person was normal even after one drink of liquor but that it affected different people in different ways. After much discussion the following hypothetical question was propounded:

Q—Doctor, it is evident that the prisoner was under the influence of liquor and engaged in an altercation during which he fell to the floor. Within an hour the prisoner was said to have a wound variously described as an abrasion, and described by the prisoner as a wound an inch long over the right eye extending from about the outside edge if the eyebrow to the middle of the eyebrow on which blood was seen on the evening it was received, there being left on the eyebrow a prisoner a scar. It also having been testified by the accused that this wound would take one week to heal and that there was a swelling which made his eye appear smaller than usual. With regard to these the prisoner has given his opinion to the court that he thought that the wound must have been caused by the effects of a blow. Now if the prisoner's statements are correct would you state it was possible or probable that the prisoner was stunned by the blow to a degree which rendered him incapable of using his ordinary powers of reason or of the mind?

A—Blows do render people unconscious but not having seen this blow or the effects of this blow and with the rather vague evidence we have about this blow, I would refuse to pass an opinion upon this specific blow. We do know that different blows do render people unconscious.

Mr. William J. Gande was called as a witness, but his testimony was ruled out as inadmissible because he testified he had never been in the El Dorado and could not tell what kind of liquor they sold from personal experience.

Inspector Percy Reeves testified that he was familiar with the neighborhood called the Tranches, but his testimony as to the death of a British seaman from alcohol poisoning was excluded.

Bulgarian Premier Expects Agreement Soon With Servia

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, Jan. 17.—M. Stambulliski, the Bulgarian Premier and Foreign Minister, has just returned to Sofia after a prolonged tour in Europe, during which he visited all the capitals.

The members of the Ministry went to Rustchuk to meet him.

In the course of a speech in Sofia, M. Stambuliski gave an account of his interviews with foreign diplomats and leading statesmen, and particularly emphasised the importance of the understanding with Rumania.

He added that it was his belief that an understanding with Servia would also be arrived at shortly.

There will be a sewing party for relief work at the home of Mrs. F. J. Raven, 405 Avenue Joffre, Friday morning from 9:30 to 12 o'clock. Ladies of the Community Church and others who are interested in helping are urged to come; bringing their thimbles with them.

Doctor and Mrs. Luther Freeman wish to announce that they will be at home every Wednesday afternoon, and not only on the afternoon of January 19 as seemed to be implied in the notice of the last bulletin.

VON BUELOW IN RACE FOR SEAT AS PRESIDENT

German Socialists Oppose Candidacy Of Former Monarchist Leader

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, Jan. 17.—It is believed that the candidature of Prince von Buelow for the Presidency of the German Republic, though it has not yet assumed an official character, has already made some headway, and has notably received the support of the German Peoples Party.

The success of such a candidature, which will encounter the strongest opposition from the Socialists, would be an indication of the German mentality, and reinforce the apprehensions of those who fear the survival in Germany of the policy of "keeping the powder dry and the sword sharpened."

MANIFESTO BY EBERT

(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, Jan. 18.—President Ebert has issued a manifesto on the occasion of the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the Empire, in which he extols the unity of the German tribes, but bewails the separation from his compatriots, particularly in Austria. He adds:

"Despite the differences in political and economic views, frontiers shall not divide us. The unity of the Fatherland is an article of faith, and the earnest hope for all."

GERMAN REPLY

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, Jan. 17.—Herr Bergmann, the German representative on the Reparations Commission, and chief German delegate to the Technical Conference in Brussels, is announced to report to Paris today the German reply to the 41 clauses of the "questionaire" which was submitted by the Allied experts before the adjournment of the Brussels Conference.

Paris, Jan. 17.—Maximilian Harden, German publicist, gives in his review, the "Zukunft," his views on the Upper Silesian question.

It is recognised, he says, that the Germans of consequence, who occupy a leading position in the German organisations in Upper Silesia, are associated with a great German military organisation, called the "Orgesch."

All preparations have been made for an armed intervention if the result of the plebiscite is unfavorable to Prussia. Even a fleet of armored motor-cars is ready to cross the frontier into Upper Silesia, Herr Harden says.

COTTON GOODS DEAL

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, Jan. 17.—According to the "Intransigeant," the agents for British cotton goods, with a view to inducing French merchants to buy their wares, have proposed to accept payments in cash at the rate of 40 francs to the pound sterling.

A like indication of an impending fall in the exchange rate is to be seen, adds the "Intransigeant," in a recent sale to an English house by a firm of French motor-car manufacturers, in which the rate was reckoned at 35 francs to the pound.

PRESENTATION TO SERGEANT GANLY OF POLICE FORCE

The Central Police Station reading room was crowded at noon yesterday with members of the Force who had assembled to bid farewell to the Senior Sergeant of the Force—Sergeant Ganly—who leaves on the Plassy on seven months leave.

Sergeant Ganly is a general favorite with all ranks and his general cheerfulness and good nature are some of the outstanding features of his character. He leaves with the best wishes of the whole Force.

Chief Inspector Vaughan, under whom Sergt. Ganly has worked for a number of years, addressed him on behalf of his comrades. He said in part:

PRESENTS BAG

"It is the desire of your comrades, in view of your approaching departure on home leave, that we meet here today to express to you in words and to show in some tangible form the high respect in which you are held by all ranks and to show our appreciation generally of the ready manner in which you have from time to time performed your duties.

"I wish to be allowed right here to pay you a personal tribute by saying, that in all my Police work I have hardly ever known an Officer who has worked better or more willingly and it has been a great pleasure to have a man like yourself assisting in the general routine of the multifarious details of which Police duty is composed in this district.

"You have been true to yourself, loyal to the Service and those in authority over you: you have played a straight game and have been a man in every sense of the word and through these fine qualities you have earned the confidence of each and all your officers.

"Your better qualifications are those which are of vital importance to good discipline and include the strictest attention to duty and the subordination of yourself to the interest of your Service and the Community."

A very fine traveling bag and a case of pipes were then handed to the Sergeant.

SERGT. GANLY REPLIES

Sergeant Ganly in replying eulogised Chief Inspector Vaughan and said it had been one of the greatest pleasures of his life to work under such a considerate Officer—he considered and encouraged his men in every way and made life a pleasure.

He thanked his comrades heartily for the beautiful and useful presents which he was sure he did not deserve.

Prohibition Makes Good Says Chief Of Revenue Force

(U. S. Naval Radio through Reuter)

Washington, Jan. 17.—Mr. Williams, Commissioner of Internal revenue, in his report on the first year of national prohibition, takes a more hopeful view of enforcement than a good many Americans, who are wont to declare that the Volstead Act has made the country a paradise for hypocrites.

He declares that the work of enforcement is satisfactory, but admits that "it would be hard to conceive of the Devil ceasing to hold out temptations, or letting up in various schemes at any time within the near future."

The report shows that 24,469 persons were arrested and over a thousand automobiles seized on the border, for transporting liquor without a permit.

India Disbanding Forty Regiments

(Reuter's Service)

Delhi, Jan. 18.—In consequence of the termination of the war and the bad financial outlook, the Government is demobilising about a dozen Indian cavalry and over thirty Indian infantry regiments within the next three months, entailing the discharge of thirty thousand men and two thousand five hundred British officers. Two British cavalry regiments and four British infantry battalions will also probably be sent home.

The Government is considering means of circumventing a probable heavy budget deficit, consequent upon the fall in the exchange and the present trade depression.

'TRENCHES' GIVEN MONTH OF GRACE BEFORE CLOSING

"Final" Order Issued Against Bar Rooms By Chinese Police Chief

The bar rooms of "The Trenches" have until April 17 to cease operating as such, according to a "final" notification which has been issued by the Chief of the Woosung-Shanghai Constabulary, Mr. Hsu Kuo-liang.

The notification, which is printed in Chinese and English, has been posted in the district affected. It states that the order is issued at the instance of the Military Defense Commissioner owing to the continued violation of the previous orders calling upon these places to close at midnight. The keepers of the bars on North Szechuen and Jukong Roads, it states, "have been found constantly violating the Police Regulations in that they keep their businesses running the whole night long, and lately shooting affrays have frequently occurred, causing breach of the peace and good order of the district."

It is further stated that the licenses shall be returned to the Chinese authorities.

The proprietors of the bars, however, may keep their places open for the carrying on of "any other kind of business." In this connection it is announced that the Chief of the Constabulary will make a thorough investigation at the end of a month's time, closing up and revoking the licenses of any places found running as bar rooms.

Warship Sent Out To Save Vessel Adrift In Floe

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, Jan. 17.—The ice-breaker Baikal, which has been reported as adrift in an ice-floe, was located yesterday in the neighborhood of Shimagasaki by the rescue ships Chukwa Maru and Tairei Maru, which, however, were unable to approach her, owing to the ice.

The battleship Mikasa is leaving Ataru this morning in order to effect a rescue.

Japanese To Have Britons Build Air Craft At Yokosuka

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, Jan. 17.—The Naval authorities have decided on the construction of the largest type of aircraft at Yokosuka, and will engage 20 British civil engineers and mechanics for this purpose.

Mixed Court Jottings

Adam Brozki and Slawislava Felixovna Dzovakovskaya, the Russian man and Polish woman caught attempting to steal $500 worth of clothing from Boyes, Bassett and Company on Christmas Eve, were convicted in the Mixed Court yesterday after many remands and disposed of for two months in the Municipal jail. At which the local federation of linotype operators will doubtless rise and give three cheers. Sentence dates from the time of arrest and it was stipulated in the judgment that should Brozki be able to secure passage to his home in Caucasia before sentence has elapsed he shall be escorted aboard the boat and permitted to leave. Testimony in the case was given by Mr. Boyes and the police. Brozki's defense was that a couple of dresses got entangled with the buttons on his coat and were dragged off the counter, creating the impression that he was about to steal them. The woman admitted theft of "two or three" articles but denied attempting to steal the things mentioned in the charge. She is known to the local police as having been previously convicted of shoplifting in Harbin and Brozki is also believed to have a police record there.

A claim for $1,400 brought by a brothel keeper against a sing-song girl was dismissed by Assessor Jacobs and Magistrate Tsang in the Mixed Court yesterday. The claim, as outlined by Mr. J. B. Davies, appearing for the plaintiff, was that the money had been loaned by his clients and was secured by three promissory notes. A witness for the plaintiff stated that the money had been loaned to the girl in order that she might pay off an old debt and enter a new brothel. The defendant, who is only 18 years of age, gave evidence to the effect that her parents were responsible for her putting into the brothel and that they obtained the money for her so that she could enter another establishment. The Court held that under the circumstances judgment could not be given for the plaintiff. Mr. Lawrence Kentwell appeared for the defendant.

Your Health Comes First

Good Health is your most valuable asset;—its preservation should, therefore, receive your most careful consideration. An important point which should always be borne in mind is the fact that a great many forms of ill-health can be traced, directly or indirectly, to disorders of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. It is wise, therefore, to keep these organs in healthy activity. When they show any signs of derangement let that reliable medicine, Beecham's Pills, be taken at once. Always deal with digestive ailments in time. They are far-reaching in their possibilities of mischief if neglected, as they too often are. M.C.C. MATCHES IN AUSTRALIA DISCOVERED NEW FAST BOWLER; WRITER JUSTIFIES BARRACKING

Mr. W. Monroe Anderson, In Japan Advertiser, Describes Play Of English And Australian Cricket Teams After Seeing Games

BY W. MONRO ANDERSON

Having just arrived from Australia it occurred to me that a few particulars on the English team might be of interest to British readers. The team up to the hour of my departure had been received in a royal way, many pleasant excursions being arranged. Let it be said at once whatever the results of the series of test matches may be the English have among them a humorist of the highest order. I refer to Mr. Wilson the vice-captain and Yorkshire cricketer. He is already famous throughout Australia. At the mayoral reception at Adelaide his turn to speak came fifth and by that time the audience had begun to melt away. Mr. Wilson rose and remarked that he was fifth man in the scene and that reminded him of the Surrey Oval when Hobbs was out and the crowd was beginning to move away.

EARLY MISFORTUNES

Great misfortune fell on the team from the first. Hitch broke a finger in the first match. Waddington could not play on account of a boil on his arm and one of the other bowlers was indisposed The matches against West and South Australia and against Victoria were walks over for the English but too much must not be judged from this for these States will among them probably only provide four members of the Australian test team at the most. There is really only one bowler of class amongst these states, Armstrong, and he is somewhat of a veteran.

I witnessed most of the matches, notably that against New South Wales. On the last day of this match New South Wales went in requiring something like 347 to win and it was doubtful how they would be made. As a matter of fact 274 runs were made before the first wicket fell both Macarthey and Collins making centuries. Neither gave the semblance of a chance. Gregory, the fast, and Mailey, the slow bowler, did the execution when the English were batting.

Gregory is a recent find, a very powerful man and exceedingly fast. He is a magnificent specimen of an athlete. The result of this match gives food for reflection. The cricket was true and good to the end, the weather quite mild and the English won the toss: Of the new men in Australia two names will probably be well before the public before the test matches are over.

Dr. Park of Melbourne University and Pellew of Adelaide University. I do not know if the latter played in the test match just finished but he is a great little batsman without fear and as modest as you make them. He belongs to the Trumper school and is a brilliant fielder.

As I have written Park and Pellew are both University men both diminutive in stature, both brilliant bats and fieldsmen.

"BARRACKING"

A great deal has been written on the question of barracking and I notice one paper in Japan has written bitterly on the question, quoting from the English press to support its argument. Let it be noted that the paper quoted was the Daily Chronicle the only English paper to find fault. Why did not this paper published in Japan quote what the other English papers had to say.

Douglas, the English captain, found no fault at all and remarked that what pleased the Australians pleased him. Having been absent from Australia for 27 years the barracking jarred on me somewhat at first but I soon saw there was every justification for it.

Let it be noted too that the barracking is always numerous and the Australian is just as severe on his own men as is against the stranger. If anything will kill cricket it is the slow tactics of certain batsmen. Certainly it is not the barracking that will be the cause. In the match against South Australia which I saw from start of finish the English were painfully slow. They batted on a perfect wicket and with everything in their favor. There is not a single bowler of note in the South Australian team, certainly not one who would find a place in an English County team and yet Hendren took 27 minutes to make nine runs, plodding his weary way between the wickets like the poet Gray's ploughman.

Let me give a sample of the barracking, Douglas had bowled for a long time with a shocking average from the scoring board end, that is with his back to it. The ordinary barracker would have told him to take himself off. Not so the Australian barracker. This is what was called out. "Why don't you put yourself on at the other end, Douglass," the suggestion being that from that position Douglas would be able to see the scoring board and reflect on his average. Douglas himself has remarked that the humor of the barracker is of a high order and the Governor of South Australia, a cricketer of note, laughed heartily at the many humorous remarks made by the crowd.

It was considered that the test matches would be a walk over for the English. Personally I feel that the latter will have to give of their best if they are to win. Gregory the Australian is possibly the best fast bowler in the world at present and if he keeps fit will probably be the cause of the downfall of the English.

Other new men in Australia who may come to the front are Andrews and Dr. Toger of New South Wales and possibly Iremonger, the slow Victorian bowler. I mixed with the crowds in all the matches before leaving Australia and I can assure your readers that the Australian is a real sport. He never grieves over a loss and may I say without any semblance of boasting that in cricket, as he proved in the great war, he never gives in until the end. The greater the disaster that befalls him the greater grit he displays. Surely that is a characteristic worthy of any sportman's admiration.

COLUMBIANS LOSE TO BLUES QUINT; GREENS FORFEIT

Country Club Basketball Team Beaten 47-32; Irle And Bartlett Are Stars

With Irle and Bartlett as the shining lights, the Blues handily defeated the Columbia Country Club by a score of 47 to 32 last night in the foreign basketball league. The game was played at the Chinese Y.M.C.A. gymnasium. Irle shot ten baskets from the floor while Bartlett netted ten from the floor and one from the foul line.

A second game was scheduled between the Greens and the Shanghai Public School, the former quintet forfeiting.

The summary:

Blues 47; Haskell lf, Hayes rf, Bartlett c, Irle lg, Roberts rg.

Columbia Club 32: R B. Nichols lf, Dunham rf, Porterfield c, Noble lg, W. A. B. Nichols rg, Marsden rg.

Goals from floor: Irle, 10; Bartlett, 8; Haskell, 4; Roberts; Nichols, 7; Porterfield, 4; Dunham, 4.

Goals from fouls: Nichols, 2; Bartlett.

Time, two 20-minute periods; Referee, Trons; Timer, Woo; Scorer, H. Brewster.

Junior Golf Club

In the final of the Junior Golf Club championship J. Rush defeated D. McAlister by two up and one to play after a very up and down game in which some excellent golf was witnessed. At one stage Rush had as long a lead as six holes but McAlister, playing a very dogged game, not only wiped that off but took a one hole lead, only, however, to go down again.

GEORGE GRAY IS TWICE WINNER AT HONGKONG CLUBS

Billiard Champion Allows Opponents 300 In 700 Point Games; Give Lecture

In his first exhibition at Hongkong, George Gray, famous billiard champion, who comes here soon, defeated Leung Kam-kong, former champion of Hongkong, by 71 points in a 700-point game after conceding Leung 300 points. Gray defeated W. Brown by 65 points in his second match. Brown also received 300 in the 700 point game.

In the match against Leung, Gray made one break of 62 and scored 100 points in eight minutes.

After the match the champion gave an exhibition of masse shots, scoring from all sorts of seemingly impossible positions. One interesting effort was to make his ball run around the apex of the triangular frame used in snooker, but the ball was recalcitrant. He illustrated the possibilities of position playing by bringing all three balls together after considerable traveling and did some "topside" cannons along the cushion. Striking each ball in succession he made them cannon in flight, and with some trick problems had the crowd amused.

In his lecturette he explained that his one aim now was to simplify the game for the amateur, who should play better. His strong advice was plain billiards, without attempting angles and screwing. The four things to be observed were stance, bridge, holding the cue, and delivery, and he gave practical demonstrations, making up an interesting talk on the A. B. C. of the game.

In conclusion he performed tricks with the pool ball basket, firing the red in and then the white, making the latter remain while the red came out again.

The New Caddy Problem

A Strike To Preserve Tips

BY ABE MITCHELL

The caddie has always been a bone of contention in golf. Today he is a bigger problem than ever. Without taking into consideration the moral aspect of his work, whether it is right that a strong and healthy man should spend his time in carrying clubs round a course, it is clear that his position has changed very materially as compared with the days before the war. A caddie has to live like the rest of us and it is right, if he is to be employed at all, that he should be paid a living wage. But this is going to make golf dreadfully dear and goodness knows it is dear enough already. The professional realises this for his expenses have increased almost as much as those of the amateur and of course in the case of the latter it is a question of putting his hand deep into his pocket and continually paying out without any return.

There has been trouble at several clubs in the south of England in regard to caddies recently. The other day there was a strike at Walton Heath and at Coombe Hill, where Sandy Herd presides over the shop, the caddies threatened similer action. It was really a humorous situation at Coombe Hill. The club decided that the caddies were to receive an extra sixpence a round on the understanding that there would be no more tips in the future. But the caddy knows very well on which side his bread is buttered, particularly at wealthy clubs like Coombe Hill. So they rejected the terms, saying that they were content with the old food of two shillings a round so long as the tipping system was reserved.

One can well believe that from their own point of view they acted rightly. To lose the tips would be very serious, for to my knowledge the tips given are often greater than the fee.

THE ST. ANDREWS SYSTEM

As I have said the caddy question is a very difficult one. It must be appreciated that a week's takings from fees alone are not sufficient to give a man, at any rate a man with domestic responsibilities beyond his own, a decent living. He has no guarantee of regular employment. Even in good weather he may miss employment for half a day or a day; in bad weather he is usually forced into idleness. Indeed during the best golfing months of the year I do not think the caddy earns more than thirty shillings a week from fees alone. That of course is at clubs where there is a good deal of play during the middle of the week. At St. Andrews they have a system whereby you can engage a caddy by the week. During this time he becomes your servant as it were doing any odd jobs you may require and for this he receives three pounds a week. It would be possible to carry out the same plan at the seaside clubs during the holiday season and perhaps

When Yale Wins, Harvard's "Ol' Clothes Man" Does Big Business

What do Harvard students do when their football team is defeated by Yale? They visit Max Keeser, who is Harvard's official "ol' clothes man." Max has been on the job for the past twenty years buying cast-off clothing from the Harvard boys and selling them to Cambridge folk at cut prices. He says he has bought the old clothes of many a student, well known in the business and professional world today, when those students bet wrong on college events. Keeser, it is said, is as much a Harvard institution as Memorial Hall or the college office.

FILIPINO BOXER SIGNS FOR FIGHTS IN UNITED STATES

Dencio Cabanela Will Meet Featherweights In American Cities

Dencio Cabanela, featherweight and lightweight champion of the Orient and the best Filipino boxer ever developed, has signed a contract to fight six bouts in the United States and will sail for San Francisco in March. Dencio has signed with Art O'Connor, a San Francisco promoter who went to the Philippines with Lew McFarland.

Dencio fought his first bout in Manila less than four years ago and his consistent rise was marked by his acquiring both the featherweight and lightweight titles. He has beaten practically every American and Australian boxer who appeared in Manila with the exception of Llew Edwards.

Edwards won over Dencio with little trouble and when he went to the States was stopped in his first round, showing very little against even mediocre American scrappers.

LOCAL FOOTBALL ASSOCIATION RE-FORMS UNDER NEW RULES; NEW OFFICERS ARE ELECTED

Controlling Body Is Changed At Annual Meeting; Revised Regulations And Constitution Adopted; Mr. Fulton Elected Secretary

The Shanghai Football Association died and was brought to life again at the annual general meeting held last evening at the Cathedral School when the proposed reorganisation scheme was put into effect.

When the meeting, which was well attended, was called to order the ordinary course of business was gone over, as though the Association were to continue as previously. Mr. A. J. Stewart, vice-president, occupied the chair in the absence of Mr. John Prentice and after Mr. W. C. G. Clifford, honorary secretary and treasurer, had read the minutes of the last annual meeting, held in November 1918, the election of officers was proceeded with.

The president and vice-president were relected; Mr. A. R. C. Fulton was made secretary and Mr. S. R. Kerr treasurer, it being decided unfair to leave all of the work to one man, and the old council was also re-elected, with the substitution of the name of Dean C. J. F. Symons for that of Dean Walker and the addition of the names of Mr. T. Crookdake and Captain E. I. M. Barrett.

The reconstruction program was then brought up and after considerable discussion the resolution dissolving the old Association was passed and the newly elected officers and council went out of office after having served for half an hour.

There was some opposition to the resolution but after it had been pointed out by Mr. Fulton that this was the simplest and most effective way in which to assure the reconstructive program aimed at and Mr. Forshaw had emphasised the necessity of having an active and interested body in control of the organisation the measure was passed.

The resolution as passed read:

"That the Shanghai Football Association and the competitions under its jurisdiction be and hereby are dissolved—and—that Captain E. I. M. Barrett and Mr. G. F. Forshaw be and are hereby appointed Joint Trustees for the time being, of all moneys, cups, shields or other prizes, books accounts registers and other documents, the property of or for which the existing Association is responsible."

A second resolution was then presented and passed, to the following effect:

"That this meeting resolves itself into a committee, of which Mr. G. F. Forshaw shall be chairman, for the purpose of organising a new Football Association, with its attendant competitions, on the basis of the rules and regulations passed by the representatives of the various clubs at a meeting held on Thursday, December 16, 1920, in the Cathedral School, all of whom were members of the late Association—and—that Captain E. I. M. Barrett and Mr. G. F. Forshaw be and are hereby authorised to deliver to the duly appointed officers of the new Association, all such moneys, cups, shields or other prizes, books, accounts, registers and other documents of which, for the time being, they were the Joint Trustees."

Mr. Forshaw then took the chair and after Mr. Fulton had been re-elected honorary secretary of the new Association the new rules were taken up one by one. There were one or two deletions and a number of amendments.

Under the new rules the Association is to be governed by a Council "consisting of the officers, that is to say—a president, two vice-presidents, an honorary secretary and an honorary treasurer, three other members and one representative from each Club, duly qualified as in Rule 4 hereof, and a Board of Appeal consisting of three persons to be elected annually by the Council."

The following officers were elected after the rules had been passed:

Patron, Sir Everard Fraser; president, Mr. John Prentice; vice-presidents, Mr. A. J. Stewart and Mr. W. S. Campbell; honorary treasurer, Mr. S. R. Kerr; three other members, the Rev. Brother S. Faust, Mr. W. S. Featherstonhaugh and Capt. E. I. M. Barrett.

WHOLE DISTRICT IS WIPED OUT BY FIRE IN POOTUNG

Godowns Endangered When 150 Chinese Shops Burn; "Plenty Of Insurance"

About 150 Chinese shops and dwellings of the La Nee Du district of Pootung were swept away in a blaze which engaged the efforts of the fire department of the International Settlement through the night and until late in the afternoon yesterday before it was subdued.

As pointed out in the official report fires in this particular district seemingly have become annual affairs, as one was fought there on September 2, 1919 and a second in the same district destroyed a large number of shops just a year ago yesterday. The report continues significantly: "As far as can be discovered there was no loss of life, but there was plenty of insurance, how much is not certain."

Yesterday's blaze was in the same block that was destroyed a year ago which is just in the rear of the Butterfield and Swire godowns. It is thought the fire started in a rice shop and it spread with such terrific rapidity that it swiftly reached buildings located some distance away. It was not until about half-past two in the morning that the assistance of the Settlement brigade was asked for and at that time the nearby godowns were in imminent danger. When the Settlement firefighters arrived more than a hundred shops had been destroyed and the flames were sweeping through others along Pootung Road. Both the Hoong Shing and Butterfield and Swire godowns seemed doomed.

Working in two sections the department under the direction of the Chief Officer attacked the south end of the blazing area first. Great difficulty was encountered in carrying hose lines into the intricate alleys where rows of wood dwellings were crumbling in the furnace of flames. Fanned by a northeast wind the heat and smoke increased the many difficulties of the firemen.

On the arrival of reinforcements the work of the firemen was extended and a stubborn fight continued until about 5 o'clock when at length the fire was brought under control. It was necessary, however, to continue the work until late in the afternoon before all danger was removed.

ENGLISH WRITER'S REPLY TO ARTICLE BY S. S. McCLURE

J. O. P. Bland And Sir Harry Johnston Take Exception To Theories

(Reuter's Service)

London, Jan. 18.—Mr. Samuel S. McClure's recent article entitled "West versus East" which appeared in McClure's Magazine and was the object of unfavorable comment from the Times has invoked two letters to that paper, from Mr. J. O. P. Bland and Sir Harry Johnston, respectively.

Mr. Bland emphasises the falaciousness of the idea of Asiatic solidarity which, he says, typifies the generalisation common among those applying theories to facts of which they have not full experience.

"Ferment in the Oriental world, (much of it due to Western inspiration) is serious and undeniable," he says, "but it is equally undeniable that in China and Korea today the Anglo-Saxon is less feared than the Japanese, and that only Pax Britannica preserves India from fierce internecine strife."

Sir Harry Johnston declares that many publicists and statesmen in the United States and Great Britain unreasonably urge, not only the exclusion of the Japanese from America and Australasia, but also the prevention of Japan's very natural exploitation of Eastern Asia. He attributes the unfortunate competition in naval armaments to this cause, whence, he says, there may some day come an explosion.

Clearing House Of Soviet In Copenhagen Broken Down, Rumor

(Reuter's Service)

London, Jan. 17.—Sir Charles Sykes M.P., the head of a deputation of British business men who went to Copenhagen with a view to organising there a system of barter as a means of opening trade with Central Europe, has now returned.

In the course of an interview he expressed the opinion that a substantial trade with Russia would be impossible for a long time to come, owing to Russia's lack of exportable commodities. Thus the Soviet clearing-house in Copenhagen has broken down.

In the meantime, he said, negotiations are proceeding in London with a view to concentrating on the Baltic States, where the conditions are more hopeful of success.

HARDING MEETS FORDNEY

Washington, January 17.—Mr. Fordney, a member of the House of Representatives, who has been conferring with President-Elect Harding at Marion, Ohio, says that a special session of Congress will be summoned for May 4.

The New Caddy Problem

something may be attempted on these lines another year.

We are accustomed to the tipping system in most walks of life and have always tolerated it in golf. There are no doubt good grounds for objecting to it because of the unfortunate circumstances which it sets up. Most of the trouble arises through players giving lavish tips, for the caddy only shows the human side of his nature if he is a little neglectful of his duties towards the player who is not accustomed to give him as much as, say, a fellow member. It would undoubtedly be a good thing if tips were standardised but that again would only be equivalent to a raise in pay and as the incident at Coombe Hill demonstrates it would have to be a pretty considerable rise to be satisfactory. The one fact stands out that if you employ a man as a caddy you must pay him properly and it does not matter whether this is done through fees or by tipping. I have noticed during my tours that this fact is nicely appreciated by golfers and the reason why tips have gone up so much since the war is that they realise that fees alone do not cover their whole financial responsibilities.

THE CADDY OF TODAY

Many of the old carriers have returned but today we have largely a new generation of caddies and, on the whole, they are a poor lot. Their knowledge of the game is slight and their interest in it slighter still. The old caddy was your henchman and also your ally; your success to him was a personal matter and he watched your interests as if they were his own. The caddy-bearer of today is really pathetic to the golfer who remembers his predecessors. As I have said not only does he not care whether you win or lose but he does not know even the rules. Many of them cannot even make a tee decently. That is often the reason why the professional makes his own. You have to watch him all the time lest he commits some breach for which the rules hold you responsible. He is altogether out of sympathy with the game.

I have heard it suggested that there should be an age limit to caddies; that except on Saturday afternoons and Sundays, when it would be legitimate for men to augment their wages, they should not be employed beyond the age of sixteen. This would be one way in keeping down expenses and boys would be just as good as some of the men caddies of today. Where ever you go you see more and more girls carrying on the links and they do their work exceedingly well. They grasp the game quickly and as a rule are very attentive. A good story is told of a Scottish lassie who carried at the Gleneagles tournament. At the end of the play the professional whose clubs she had had charge of asked her if she would like a ball as a souvenir of the competition. She smilingly said she would and the professional put his hand into his pocket and brought out half a dozen or so balls, four of which were new and were still in their paper wrappings. He naturally thought that the girl would choose one with which he had played but with a "Thank you very much, sir" she took the four new balls.

Another new caddy story came from Muirfield during the Amateur Championship. You may remember that there was a shortage of caddies and that players had to search the district to find one. One competitor went over to North Berwick and sought the aid of Ben Sayers. Ben said he would do what he could and went out and approached a youth. Would he carry for Mr. Dash? "Mr. Dash?" said the caddy. "Was he a captain in the Gordon Highlanders" "Yes," said Ben." I believe he was." "Then tell him to carry his own clubs; he gave me seven days C.B."

TWO DEPARTMENTS

From Autumn 1919 there were therefore two Aeronautical Departments, one directly under the Cabinet and one under the Board of Communications who competed to the detriment of both. But after the fall of Anfu Party in the Summer of 1920 the latter was abolished and Gen. Tinn Ching was put in charge of all aeronautical affairs under the Central Government. His Department comes directly under the Cabinet and he is not controlled by any Board.

Gen. Tinn Ching left the Board of War to take over the Department. He has earned for himself a very high reputation both with the Chinese and with foreigners for high character and straight dealing and he has certainly set himself to try to eradicate squeeze. How far he succeeds remains to be seen. During 1920 the Department passed through some very difficult times which I hope will not be repeated.

I have told you about the two competing Departments early in the year, but in the Autumn the situation was much worse, when our only training aerodrome had been seized and occupied by a hostile Division, all the aeronautical stores were being held up at the ports, and certain financial complications had entirely cut off the supply of money from the Department. This difficult situation did not appear to upset Gen. Tinn Ching in the least, though it upset me. But since the Autumn conditions have gradually improved. Flying training has now recommenced at Nanyuan, south of Peking. A thoroughly up-to-date flying training establishment is being equipped at Tsing Ho, Northwest of Peking. Some of the machines which were taken by the victorious Tuchuns, after the Summer fighting, have already been returned and we hope to get the remainder back.

CHINA SIGNS AIR CONVENTION

China has signed the International Air Convention and the regulations for bringing it into force are almost ready for issue. Most of the material has been got up to Peking and is now being properly stored. Some of this material has suffered from being left on the wharves during the Summer, but luckily this is only a small portion of the available material.

The Chinese pilots have not got very far with their training yet, but some of them are promising and there ought to be a good many fully trained Chinese pilots by the end of this year. The mechanics are also promising, though they will want very careful training to overcome carelessness.

The Chinese Central Government has decided that for political and financial reasons it cannot at present develop either a Military or Naval Air Service and it is therefore going to concentrate upon developing a Government Commercial Air Service which should also be of great value in opening up the country. This is a very interesting experiment which has been tried by no other country. If the Chinese Government could expend upon its Commercial Air Service a tenth of the sum which is being expended by either England, France, or America upon their naval and military air services, it would be possible to rapidly link up the whole of the Chinese Republic with air routes.

Of course, if the Chinese Republic went to war with a Foreign Power she would make use of every weapon which would be of military value, and in that case the commercial aeroplanes would undoubtedly be used. But at the same time it is the intention of the Chinese Government to use every endeavor in the future to prevent the aeroplanes from becoming involved in any Civil War which breaks out within the Chinese Republic.

PROPOSED TIME TABLE

The Government has decided for various reasons that the first Air Line shall run from Peking to Shanghai and it will depend upon the financial results obtained from this line as to whether the other Lines can be continued. Unfortunately this is not a good commercial line owing to the efficient railway competition, but for the same reason it is an easy Line to organise, and if the machines are unreliable, which we do not expect them to be, the mails and passengers can be transferred to the Railway without much inconvenience. The Line is over a good flying country, there are meteorological observatories at either end, and the route is very easy for pilots to find on account of the railway and the canal. It is hoped to start the service on May 1 and the only place where I can foresee any delay which might make it necessary to change that date is Shanghai. We are having great difficulty in finding a suitable aerodrome.

The following is a rough provisional time table for the route.

ROUGH TIME TABLE PEKING SHANGHAI AIR LINE

Speed of Vimy Commercial calculated as 80 m. per hour. Times calculated for May 1 on which day dawns at Peking is at 5.1 a.m. sunset at 6.53 p.m. At Shanghai dawn 5.16 a.m. sunset 6.38 p.m.

Place	Miles	Peking-Shanghai Arr.	Dep.	Remarks	Shanghai-Peking Arr.	Dep.	Remarks
Peking			5.30 a.m.			6 p.m.
Tientsin	75	6.26	6.45 a.m.			4.21 5 p.m.
Tsinanfu	170	8.51	10.00 a.m.	Change aeroplane	1.15	2.15 p.m.	Change aeroplane
Suchowfu	180	12.15	12.45 p.m.			10.30 11 a.m.
Nanking	180	3	3.45 p.m.	Change aeroplane	7.45	8.15 a.m.	Change aeroplane
Shanghai	180	6 p.m.				5.30 a.m.

The service from Peking to Shanghai will run on Sundays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

The service from Shanghai to Peking will run on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays.

Restaurants and Waiting Rooms will be provided upon all aerodromes.

The Development is being assisted in every way by the Minister of Communications and the Director of the Post Office. The final details concerning charges have not yet been settled but they will probably be:

Letters. Ordinary postage charges, plus special air stamps 15 cents per postal unit (20 grammes) Express delivery and collection.

Newspapers. The same but in this case the postal unit is 50 grammes.

Parcels. Three times the ordinary parcel rates. It is hoped to arrange for express delivery with a customs officer on the aerodrome.

Passengers. At 25 cents per mile. Passengers not to be carried until the Line has been found to be reliable.

Owing to the delay in the training program due to last Summer's fighting, no Chinese pilots will be available and sufficient very experienced foreign pilots are therefore being engaged on short contracts.

APPEALS TO BUSINESS MEN

In addition to the six postal aerodromes we are taking up eight emergency landing grounds now and if necessary will get more later, the Chinese Government is issuing the necessary regulations on the subject.

There are many questions such as the insurance of passengers, transport to and from the aerodromes, etc. which are still under consideration.

I am going to end, Gentlemen, with an appeal. The Department is very short of money, and it is also a new Department dealing with a highly technical subject and I hope that you will watch its efforts with a lenient eye. This Line is a big experiment, it is about the longest Air Line in the World and its success or failure depends a great deal upon the business men in the towns along the route. If it succeeds it will be possible to open other Lines, Nanking-Hankow 3 hours, Chengtu-Hankow one day, Chengtu-Peking one day and possibly later by seaplane Hongkong-Shanghai one day, which will certainly be of very great value. I do therefore ask all of you who are interested in the welfare of China to give this enterprise your financial and moral support. I can foresee that there are many difficulties in front but with your assistance I think that they can be overcome.

COL. TCHENG SPEAKS

The text of Colonel Tcheng's speech follows:

"It affords me great pleasure to speak before you. Col. Holt has spoken very much in detail of, and I think that you have understood, the past history and the future development of aviation in China, and of the Peking-Shanghai air line.

I shall not repeat what he has said. I will only represent the director of the Aeronautical Department to say a few words.

"On account of the financial situation of the department, the Peking-Shanghai line will depend a great deal upon the local public. The other lines will be more difficult to organise, if this line fails. In fact, we were instructed to come down here to secure friendly co-operation with you, and ask for your kind assistance in developing aviation in China, and particularly with reference to the Peking-Shanghai Air Line.

"At the same time we hope that all of you will give suggestions to the department. We will consider them with pleasure and will try in every effort to comply with the suggestions given by you, provided, of course, they are in accordance with the policy of the department."

Literary Department Of American Woman's Club Studies Chinese Porcelains

The Literary Department of the American Woman's Club at its regular meeting Friday, Jan. 14 was privileged to hear two highly instructive papers: one upon the Manchu Emperor K'ang Hsi by Miss Ada Eickmeyer, the other upon Blue and White Porcelains, by Miss Sarah Bosworth.

Miss Eickmeyer said, in part.

K'ang Hsi (1662-1723 A D) was the second ruler of the Tsing dynasty. He ruled for a perfect Chinese cycle of sixty years. In spite of war and rebellion K'ang Hsi found leisure to initiate and carry out several of the greatest literary enterprises the world has ever seen, including the famous dictionary and encyclopedia.

Under K'ang Hsi's guidance the porcelain manufacture received an immense impetus, the finest blue and white the world has produced, are accredited by connoisseurs to this period, while the polychrome porcelains are unrevalled.

His reign was one of the most brilliant reigns in the whole of Chinese history, for he was a great warrior, an abie scholar, and a wise ruler. He is justly entitled to renown as one who completed the Manchu conquest of the Empire.

MISS BOSWORTH SPEAKS

"Blue and White Ware," Miss Bosworth said, "was, and is, the most common of all Oriental porcelains. The earliest blue and white dates from the Yuan dynasty which began in the latter part of the 13th century but this was coarse and poor as compared with that of later date.

"In the early part of the Ming dynasty—1368—1643—the entire ceramic art made great progress and blue and white became very famous. The best ware was made in the Hsuan-te period—1426—according to Chinese writers. A cobalt blue brought from some Mohammedan country and called Mohammedan blue was used. When this failed blue and white deteriorated until now white of the Ming dynasty is more remarkable for its brilliancy of color than for the fineness of its ware. There is however a freedom and freshness of design that makes it very pleasing to the eye and while Western connoisseurs give first place to blue and white of the K'ang-hsi period—1662—1723—many think that Ming Blue and white has been underrated, partly because of inadequate presentation.

"BLUE AND WHIE"

"A specimen of blue and white to be considered of the finest quality should possess five points; the blue should be of the finest color, the white the purest white, the drawing perfectly clean and fine in outline and shading, the shape elegant in form, the glaze brilliant and uninjured. Very few pieces possess all these points and all that do date from K'ang-hsi.

"All designs were employed in the decoration of blue and white. Perhaps the noblest of all is the prunus, sometimes erroneously called the hawthorn, which was used in decorating the jars which were used to send tea and other gifts to friends at Chinese New Year. This design has many forms but is always beautiful. It has white blossoms on a background of blue, lined to represent ice cracks and is typical of the season of New Year, departing winter and coming spring.

"Powder blue is so called from the method by which the blue is applied by spraying through gauze or dabbing it on the whole surface or on part, reserves of white being further decorated with blue, or famille verte.

EARLY DUTCH TRADERS

"Early Dutch traders exported vast quantities of blue and white and large collections were made in Europe. The ware was also copied by Dutch potters and the famous Delft ware owes its origin to Chinese blue and white."

Some beautiful specimens of Ming and K'ang Hsi, blue and white belonging to Mr. Chas. Kliene, illustrated this paper.

Although the four papers on Chinese porcelains, listened to by the department, by no means cover the field, the department program is elastic enough to include others at a later time. Mrs Wilbur announced that Chinese architecture is next to be studied; Mrs. Beaman, Jan. 28, will read a paper upon the Temples of Sacred Mt. Omei, in Szechuen. During her residence in Szechuen, Mrs. Beaman gathered up many interesting Thibetan jewels, and Szechuen tapestries and embroideries, which will be shown after her paper.

VISIT COLLECTION

Following the subject of Blue and White porcelain was an opportunity to study a collection of these porcelains, at the home of Mr. F. Raaschou on Saturday. Mr. Raaschou supplemented Miss Bosworth's paper by treating the subject of Blue and White from the practical standpoint of the collector. By effectively displaying examples of the various kind on a standard bathed in strong sunlight, he called attention to distinguishing marks, merits and demerits. He led up from the early Mohammedan blue of the Ming, through the paler blue of later Ming, and examples of Yung Cheng and Chien Lung varieties, to the Climax of the K'ang Hsi blues—the finest blue ever produced in China or elsewhere. The Ming blues elicited exclamations of pleasure, but by comparison with the pure, strong Cobalt of the K'ang Hsi, clear, deep and lustrous as sapphire stones, the other seemed dull and opaque. The K'ang Hsi pieces are elegant in design and proportions, attention was called to the marble like texture of the white, and the clearness, due to the biscuit having been many times refined, until no roughness or color existed. This was clearly shown by comparison with more ordinary wares. The K'ang Hsi blue at its best, contrasted with earlier and later blues may be likened to the difference between sapphires and lapes-lazuli.

SEE ANTIQUE RUGS

After the lesson in blue and white, specimens of powder blue decorated with gold, and powder blue undecorated were shown, as well as Mazarin blue, and peacock. A few pieces of Blanc de Chine, and Famille Verte, were displayed. One Kwannon of the white, is of exceptional merit, the figure of the goddess is shown rising from a lotus, entwined with lotus buds beautifully modelled in nearly full relief. Last of all, a large vase of Han pottery, was displayed. The olive green glaze of 2,000 years ago, remarkably preserved is covered in part by a pale gold lustre, characteristic of fine pieces of this ancient ware. Only a few pieces of this are found in Shanghai.

After serving tea, Mr. Raaschou exhibited his collection of antique rugs. A few are from Persia and Turkestan for purposes of comparison, but most of the collection is from Mongolia. They range in age from one to two hundred years, and in size from small chair rugs, to guest or prayer rugs, and were not used as floor coverings. The original colors have been mellowed by time and climatic conditions to rich old rose, coral, amber, gold and honey tones; the exquisite blues alone seem to have held their own. The texture is of an incomparable sheen, while the designs used are not of the decadent all-over varieties, but with the old reserve, and quiet spacing, with small conventionalised borders, of key, or wave or cloud. One, of rich old-gold and olive has medallions of floral design. Another has a honey colored background, with a central medallion of two roly-poly dogs, playing. The unusual feature of turquoise blue, is introduced. A few scattered butter flies, and a conventionalised lotus border in blue, complete this design, which elicited much admiration.

To one accustomed to the involved and crowded designs of Persian rugs, these old Mongolian rugs, gain peculiar appreciation, so restful is the design. Like all products of true artistic feeling these rugs would grow upon appreciation, by repeated study and inspection, the fascination of Chinese design growing with each view.

MRS. AYSCOUGH SPEAKER BEFORE WOMAN'S CLUB

Mrs. Florence Ayscough gave a very comprehensive illustrated lecture on "Chinese Poetry and Its Connotations" at the meeting of the American Woman's Club which was held yesterday afternoon at the Carlton Cafe.

In her paper Mrs. Ayscough dwelt on the connotations, technique and style of Chinese poetry and spoke of the way in which the Chinese poets wove natural history, zoology, nature, architecture, home life, and beliefs of the people into their poems.

The lantern slides proved of special interest and among the pictures shown were mountain scenes, plans of the Chinese house, palace scenes and illustrations of home life.

Mrs. R. I. Clapp vice president of the club presented the question of raising the dues of the club from three dollars to five. Regarding this matter Mrs. Clapp said:

"I know this is a much discussed question, and that the time for doing this seemed never to have quite arrived. But I do think we all agree that something must be done now, to meet the constant and increasing demands upon our treasury.

"Our membership has increased wonderfully, and with it our expense has kept stride, in fact I might say has kept a good step ahead. We have five active departments each requiring a budget. Our Library requires a certain sum each year to keep it in proper condition. There are many demands in the name of charity which we, as representative American women, must heed."

Second Weisbrod Recital

Hearing Mischa Weisbrod play a second time revives the uncanny impression received at first. The association of supreme skill and mastery with one of such tender years affected the very large audience in the same way as the musician feels about it. "Marvellous" summed up the impression of most people, last night, and the critic could say little more. The Tchaikovsky concerto is in its phrasing and rhythmic cast a work of great subtlety, its psychology is illusive and at time passionate. In it Weisbrod seems to ignore execution as such, his zest in attacking difficulties to be of secondary importance to his feeling, which is surely a triumph of genius using its subconscious mind to produce effects as easily as an ordinary person uses everyday speech. No boy could feel the tortured aspiration underlying Tchaikovsky's music, nor would we wish it so. And yet the mood of ecstasy, sense of climax were all there in something more than embryo.

Weisbrod's tone is soft and resonant, silky clear on the higher strings.

After the interval Sinding's Suite in a minor and four virtuoso pieces displayed the same qualities. No audience was ever more pleased at the sparkle and crackle of Kreisler's "Caprice Viennois" nor with the Martele and Jete bowing (as the fiddlers call it) in Bazzini's "Dance of Goblins." A Mozart Minuet and "Perpetuum Mobile" by Ries made fine pieces (not according to program). The whole audience almost declined to leave. It was announced that a farewell concert will be given on Saturday week, the 29th. The concerts are under the direction of Mr. A. Carpi who was fortunate in securing the services of Mr. Harry Ore, who, as pianist secured perfect understanding and appropriate treatment.

NOTICE

During the absence on leave of Mr. Philip. H. Cole, Engineer-in-Chief and General Manager, Mr. C. W. Porter is in charge of the Company's business as Secretary and Acting-General-Manager.

By order of the Board of Directors,
N. MACLEOD,
35050 Chairman.

The National Loan of the Third Year of the Republic of China (1914) $16,000,000 and Supplementary Issue of $8,000,000 and The National Loan of the Fourth Year of the Republic of China (1915) $24,000,000

On the 6th June, 1917, the undersigned notified subscribers to the above two loans that in pursuance of arrangements made with the Chinese Government, the loan service as regards interest payments would in future be adequately secured.

In regard to the redemption of the loans it was impossible at the time to make any announcement. The Moratorium of 1916 affected the Loan Service, and, although drawings have been proceeded with as funds permitted, Redemption has been irregular and behind the scheduled dates.

Arrangements have now been made which will enable annual drawings of each loan to be undertaken until their extinction, in 1924 in the case of the 4th Year Loan and 1925 in the case of the 3rd Year Loan.

The Ministry of Finance will notify in due course the date of the drawings to take place this year with date and place of repayment.

F. A. AGLEN,
Inspector General of Customs.

FOR SALE
A Coromandel Screen

There is at present in Shanghai a wonderful Coromandel screen, of which there is not a match either in New York, London or Paris, and which is a unique specimen.

The screen was given by Emperor Kanghi to a Viceroy, at the end of the seventeenth century and has, since then, been kept preciously by the descendants. On a ground of dark brown lacquer there is an exquisite display of flowers, birds of paradise and peacocks in beautiful old colors and gold. This kind of decoration is very rare and much sought after by foreign collectors. The screen is 11 feet high and about 24 feet in width; it has twelve folds and is in perfect condition. It will be shortly sent to Europe, but can be seen here by prospective buyers only and by applying for appointment to Box 438, THE CHINA PRESS.

Barbed Wire Will Be Used As Nails

Riga (Lativia), Jan. 4.—A use has at last been found here for the vast quantities of barbed wire left on the battlefields of Eastern Europe. Riga inventors have devised machinery for stamping nails out of the wire and hope by this method to relieve the shortage of nails in the Balkan states.

Riga has been the center of so much fighting throughout the war that most of the lakes, streams and roads about the city are thoroughly lined with barbed wire entanglements.

Miniature Battleship Perfect In Every Detail

A miniature battleship, an exact duplicate of one of Uncle Sam's great sea-fighters, has just been completed by George Monello, of Elizabeth, N. J., after almost twenty years effort. The tiny craft is five feet long and weighs about 500 pounds. It is equipped with four "14-inch" turret guns, which in reality are .32 calibre pistols, with side batteries of .22 calibre pistols, which can fire blanks or bullets. By means of a time setting instrument, which is connected to a storage battery that furnishes the motive power for the tiny craft, a broad side is fired. The model is without doubt the smallest perfect battleship in the world.

CLINKER BUILDING BLOCKS

They Withstand The Effects Of Humidity Better Than Brick

A local enterprise of Brest, France, which suspended operation during the war has recommenced the production of building blocks that are gaining widespread usage in the Brest district in certain kinds of building construction, says The Scientific American. The blocks are made in moids, as are the cement building blocks in the United States. The materials used are sand, lime and cement, with a base of crushed coal clinkers. The lower grades of blocks also contain some coal cinders. These blocks are made in several sizes. The size 10 by 20 by 6 inches sells for 237 francs per hundred blocks.

The clinker blocks are particularly used in pavements, walls, floors of cellars, warehouses, stables, garages, rough buildings and small residences. The blocks have the advantage over brick for building material in that they are cheaper and facilitate quick construction. They take plaster on the interior and stucco on the exterior where it is desirable in building. However, the outstanding advantage of the clinker block over the brick in the Brest district is the capacity of the former to withstand the great humidity of the climate that causes brick walls to drip water in the interior of the houses.

The Langdon Tragedy

WITH the departure yesterday of the U.S.S. New Orleans to pick up Admiral Gleaves at sea and proceed to Vladivostok where a Naval Court of Inquiry is to be instituted, developments following the shooting of the American lieutenant, W. H. Langdon, begin to assume a new aspect.

The importance attached to this tragic occurrence by the American authorities is clearly shown by the moves that have followed the shooting. The fact that Admiral Gleaves himself is making the long and wintry trip personally to investigate the affair and that he has created an unusually strong naval court which is accompanying him, indicate that the case is to be sifted to the bottom.

But the most interesting development probably is that revealed by the Washington correspondent of the London Times who telegraphs his paper that "The United States refuses to recognise the right of Japan to maintain sentries at Vladivostok and the demand for a substantial modification of Japanese military measures at Vladivostok may be made."

Should the United States take the position here outlined, it will rip open the whole problem of Japan's presence in Siberia, and incidentally the presence of her troops in China without the consent of China and over China's protest. Hundreds of Chinese and Koreans living peaceably on Chinese territory, and thousands of Russians quietly attending to their own business in their own country have been ruthlessly slaughtered by these alien Japanese troops. This the whole world knows. A large and influential section of Japanese public opinion, has, for upward of a year, been urging its government to withdraw from Siberia and follow the general course decided upon by the Allies. Their warnings have been uttered in vain.

And now an American lieutenant, a non-drinker by the way, returning to his ship, has been shot in the back and killed by a Japanese sentry, functioning in Vladivostok, where he had neither moral nor legal right, so far as we know, to function. This naval officer by the way was in full uniform, and was using an electric torch to pick his way along the loose and ill-kept board walk leading towards his ship. And if the sentry could see clearly enough to shoot a man in a vital spot, he must have been able also to see that the man he was slaying was in the uniform of an American naval officer. Especially when the officer had passed close to him, using the torch to guide him on his way.

Added to the death of the officer at the hands of a man who had no right to challenge him, we have the death of the officer's wife who, upon hearing of the tragedy, committed suicide.

General Oi, we note, has ordered the Japanese sentries to stop challenging Americans, and the Hochi expresses the opinion that this cannot be true, as such action would undermine Japanese morale. We are not aware that Americans at Vladivostok ever have recognised the right of the Japanese to challenge them and are inclined to think that American morale would be somewhat disturbed if we conceded any such right.

PLAGUE RATS

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Sir.—The Municipal Health Officer's last report announcing the finding within Settlement limits of several plague infected rats seems to me of ominous importance.

It is within public knowledge that the whole of the territory, viz., Chinese City, International Settlement, French Concession, and Chapei are infested with these vermin.

Last year, I believe, this same evil became so acute both in France and Great Britain, that the Public Authority of both countries inaugurated an active campaign for the systematic extermination of rats, and it has been carried through with considerable results.

I suggest, therefore, that the municipal authorities of the four local administrations hold a conference and devise means, if possible, for destroying rats systematically without more delay than can be reasonably avoided.

I would submit also for consideration of the French Concession authorities that an immediate change in the present methods of disposal of house refuse and garbage is perhaps advisable.

At present, the method is for the occupants of houses, Foreign and Chinese, to deposit their garbage on the sidewalks in the early hours of the morning, whence it is removed by the refuse workmen.

This method is obviously uncleanly, unhealthy, and unworthy of the fine roadways of the French Concession.

My alternative is as follows:

A. That the Council promulgate a by-law making it incumbent upon the house owner of every dwelling in the Concession to provide a sanitary dustbin for every one of such dwellings.

B. That these dustbins be of a pattern to be approved by the French Medical Officer of Health, and that it be obligatory that all such dustbins be provided with tops to them.

C. That the inhabitants be directed to deposit their garbage in these receptacles, which they must place outside their dwellings at the appointed times for clearance.

If care and attention is given to such a reform as above, and the Chinese are taught to pay attention to it (penalties against both Chinese and Foreign persons who ignore it should be firmly enforced) surely it will be a distinct gain to the well being of the community?

It is time that the French Concession side-walks were no longer used for direct deposits of house refuse and garbage, and I hope that public opinion will support my proposals and consider them reasonable and feasible.

Your obedient servant,

W. BRUCE LOCKHART.

P. S. I would add a plea for the Chinese workmen who are engaged in this most unpleasant and unhealthy occupation, which is, however, of such vital importance to the health and well being of the community, and think they should be paid for their work on a generous scale.

I hope Councillors will make it their business to see to the proper remuneration of these humble servants and will not permit small economies to be made at their expense. Men who undertake such unpleasant but vitally necessary tasks are entitled to generous recognition by a self-respecting community, and should be adequately recompensed for their labor.

STARVING KOREANS FIGHTING PLUCKY BATTLE

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Sir: It might seem unwise, not to say superfluous, in view of the many calls upon people's generosity at this time, to add still another, but I feel very strongly impelled to say a word in behalf of the destitute Koreans in our midst. Their number has been largely increased of late by the additions which have trickled down from Manchuria consequent upon the troubles there. The total at present in Shanghai is probably about one thousand, though not all of these are destitute, some, perhaps one third, having good positions; but in view of the fact that the new-comers know no English or Chinese, it is impossible for them to secure situations, and it is exceedingly difficult to get money from Korea, supposing there were money to send, on account of the censorship of the mails. I have recently learned, almost incidentally, for they are patient and plucky and seem never to complain, that several have died of cold and hunger, some have gone deranged, and many are suffering severely, with very little bedding or clothing and almost no food.

Last year I issued a similar appeal which was quite generously responded to and which was very much appreciated. If any feel disposed to help them in any way, either in money or old clothing or bedding, and will send it to me at 71 Chaofung Road, I will see that it reaches them and is wisely disposed. Yours etc.,

G. F. FITCH,

SOME CRITICISM

The play was "Hamlet," and the performance was for one night only. All the townspeople attended the show, and the weekly paper was held open for the notice. The next day the criticism read thusly:

"'Hamlet' was played in our town Hall last night by Mr. W.—and his company. It was a great social event. There has been a long discussion as to whether Bacon or Shakespeare wrote the plays commonly attributed to Shakespeare. It can easily be settled now. Let the graves of the two writers be opened. The one who turned over last night is the author."

A GIRL'S ESSAY ON BOYS

Boys are men who have not got as big as their papas, and girls are women who will be ladies some day. Man was made before woman. When God looked at Adam He said to himself: "Well, I think that I can do better than that if I try again." And He made Eve. God liked Eve so much better than Adam that there have been more women than men.

Boys are a trouble. They wear out everything but soap. If I had my way half the world would be girls and the other half dolls. My papa is so nice that I think he must have been a little girl when he was a little boy.

Man was made, and on the seventh day he rested. Woman was then made, and she has never rested since.

The Cynic Says

It is no disgrace to be poor, but it might just as well be.

I always sit in the highest row of seats in the top gallery so that nothing in the show can go over my head.

I know a box-office ticket salesman who hasn't seen a show in nine years and wouldn't go to one if he had a chance.

There is a school in Brooklyn which advertises that it will teach any girl to become a movie actress for $2, and I believe I have seen a lot of girls on the screen who are graduates of this $2 school.

The New Way Of Teaching English

(Review by Brander Matthews)

The Business Man's English. Spoken and Written. By Wallace Edgar Bartholomew and Floyd Hurlbut. New York: Macmillan Company. 1920.

Handbook Of Business English. By George Burton Hotchkiss and Edward Jones Kilduff. Revised edition. New York: Harper & Brothers.

When a visiting professor from England has spent a few months in the United States he is likely to tell one or another of the friends he has made on this side of the Atlantic that he has been surprised at the widespread interest we Americans take in education—an interest far deeper than that which is taken by the English themselves. A few years ago one of those visiting professors went so far as to say to me that nobody in England seemed to care anything about education, whereas everybody he had met in America was eager to discuss it. Of course, this was a violent overstatement of the case, but it was not exactly a mis-statement.

There is nothing in Great Britain resembling our National Education Association, which unites in its membership the whole teaching body of the nation, university Presidents and kindergarten teachers, State Superintendents of Education and instructors in physical culture. There is no organ of the teaching profession at all comparable with The Educational Review, founded and for thirty years edited by Nicholas Murray Butler. There are no books of recent British authorship as stimulating as the late William James's "Talks to Teachers on Psychology." There are no institutions with the special purpose and the wide scope of Teachers College (now affiliated with Columbia University) and of the dozen or more training schools which have been established in imitation of it. There are probably not half—and perhaps not a quarter—so many books dealing with educational theory and practice published in the course of a twelve-month in Great Britain as there are in the United States. For example, source books for the use of students of law, of economics, of sociology and of history are abundant over here, whereas they are so infrequent over there as to be almost unknown.

In no department of education has this American activity produced more striking results than in the teaching of English composition. Forty and fifty years ago English composition, if it was taught at all, was taught by the use of a manual of rhetoric, which consisted mainly of rules and definitions. The students was expected to get by heart these rules and definitions, apparently in the belief that they were all he needed to enable him to write easily and accurately, clearly and forcibly. He was rarely required to practice what the rules prescribed. His memory was loaded in preparation for the ever-impending examination, after which it got rid of its burden as speedily as it could. Small wonder was it that many seniors in college were incapable of writing even a letter of thanks. The few college graduates who wanted to learn how to write had to teach themselves as best they could.

It was at Harvard that the first earnest effort was made to remedy this lamentable condition. Obviously, the one way to get men to write clearly and forcibly was by setting them at the actual work of writing and keeping them everlastingly at it, and not by cramming them with lists of faults that they must avoid. They were encouraged to write and to keep on writing; and they were not discouraged by having their minds surcharged with examples of how not to write. Where the older manuals of rhetoric had been didactic and negative, the newer books were practical and affirmative. The value of this more sensible method was made manifest thirty years ago when Professor Barrett Wendell published his "English Composition," which deserves to be called an epoch-making book. The trail which Professor Wendell blazed was speedily broadened into a highway by those who followed in his footsteps. Even when the system of free electives was carried to a disintegrating extreme, the study of English composition was obligatory.

In many colleges the students are expected to hand in daily themes on topics of immediate interest to them. This was expensive, for it required a large staff of competent instructors, but it was worth what it cost, although it imposed on these devoted instructors a vast amount of monotonous labor. From the colleges this method was borrowed by the high schools, which have multiplied rapidly in the last score of years. In the high schools themselves another step in advance was taken when they began to train the student in "Oral English"—that is to say, when they required him to stand and deliver, to say what he had to say on a given subject before he sat down to write it out. Even now the ultimate possibilities of oral English have probably not been attained, although it has already revealed its value as a stimulus to clearer thinking, to clearer pronunciation, and to more accuracy in the use of words.

Of late there have been published a host of subsidiary manuals of direct practical benefit, dealing with argumentation, with the short-story and with the one-act play—all of them the outgrowth of the movement to get the student intelligently interested in the art of expression and to supply him with outlets for self-expression. Perhaps the most recent development, due partly to the establishment of High Schools of Commerce, is the textbook intended to teach what is called "Business English"—that is to say, the kind of English which is best adapted to the use of men engaged in earning their living in various enterprises which are necessarily carired on by correspondence.

In the always interesting Bulletin of the Illinois Association of Teachers of English there recently appeared a frank article by a teacher in one of the high schools of Chicago. Apparently the writer is himself engaged in teaching Business English yet he begins his essay by saying that "Business English ought never to have been; business itself is repudiating the first half of the term while clamoring for better results from the second part." And he asserts that "Business English owed its existence to a revolution against academic English." If this assertion is justified then "academic English" must be a fearsome thing; and I should like to believe that it is not now taught anywhere. As we read on we find that the contributor to the Bulletin thinks that Business English came into being because teachers of composition put an over-emphasis on literature and an under-emphasis on common sense, due to an overweening desire of the average instructor "to educate for Utopia and not for the United States."

The combination of the teaching of literature with the teaching of composition has its advantages, and not a few of them; but it has one evident disadvantage if it tempts instructors to dwell unduly on the vocabulary of literature and to slight the vocabulary of life. All high school students and all college undergraduates ought to be exposed to the contagion of literature; but many of them will be immune, more or less unable to develop any keen interest in books as books. They may be led to the library but they cannot be made to drink of the Pierian spring. None the less can the majority of these Rough Writers—as George R. Carpenter used to call them—be made to think with an approximation to logic, to arrange their thoughts coherently, and to say what they have to say with terse effectiveness. And when they have the good fortune to work under a teacher who can give them this training then they will be under no necessity of mastering any manual of Business English. To those—and they are many—who have not had this good fortune, a Manual of Business English may be of use.

The "Handbook of Business English" of Messrs. Hotchkiss and Kilduff was first published six years ago and it now appears in an improved edition. "In it," so the authors state in their preface, "English is treated as a living tool to accomplish practical results—as a medium not merely for correct expression, but also for effective impression." That is to say, their book is a manual of rhetoric limited in its purpose and more serviceable because of that limitation. As "Business English is a useful art rather than a fine art," the principles of governing it are somewhat different from those governing other branches of composition. "Businenss English is typically conversational—in many cases colloquial." The difference between Business English and literary composition is defined as being largely a difference in point of view, because, "in literary composition the writer is concerned with expressing his own ideas and feelings in a way that will entertain and inform," whereas in Business English "he is concerned with the ideas and feelings he can evoke in the reader." And therefore the golden rule of Business English is "Adapt the message to the reader" (p. 3).

In one aspect business English is a device of epistolary salesmanship. In this aspect, it must possess five essential qualities, "Clearness, Correctness, Conciseness, Courtesy and Character;" and the effect, not the intention, is the standard of measuring these qualities, since the writer of a letter cannot be present when it is read to explain any of its deficiencies. Therefore, "good business English means not only good English, but good business," and the "written messages of a firm should be in keeping with the character and reputation of the firm; they should help to maintain and develop its good-will" (p. 15). Moreover, "the language must be simple enough to be surely within the reader's comprehension," with all its words carefully chosen from the vocabulary he uses. And the tone of a letter must not be antagonistic or suspicious, pompous or patronising; it must not be servile or flippant, didactic or sarcastic. Above all, it must not be "dull, colorless or lifeless" (p. 23).

These few quotations are sufficient to show that Messrs. Hotchkiss and Kilduff have definite ideas of their own and they can present these ideas in their own sturdy and nervous English with Clearness, Correctness, Conciseness, Courtesy and Character. Their book seems to be admirably adapted to its special purpose. It is not merely a collection of useful rules, it is based on principles solidly established and kept constantly in mind. It is a manual of rhetoric, and it is also a handbook of applied psychology.

Both books are excellent, each in its own way. They will tend to raise the standard of business English, both spoken and written. Perhaps even a stronger statement might be ventured: they will perform a needed service in improving the language employed out of business hours. Those who get the best out of these two books will find that their ordinary conversation is likely to be improved in Clearness, Correctness, Conciseness, Courtesy and Character.

A Trip To Mars

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Oh, by and by we shall hear the cry:
"This is the way to Mars;
Come take a trip on the morning ship.
It sails by the Isle of Stars.

"A glorious view of planets new
We promise by night and day;
Past dying suns our good ship runs,
And we pause at the Milky Way."

I am almost sure we will take that tour
Together, my dear, my dear;
For ever have we, by land and sea,
Gone journeying far and near.
Out over the deeps, up mountain steeps,
We have travelled mile on mile;
And to sail away to the Martian Bay—
Oh, that were a trip worth while!

Our ship will race thro' seas of space
Up into the Realms of Light,
Till the whirling ball of the Earth grows small,
And is utterly lost to sight.

Thro' the nebulous spawn where planets are born
We will pass with sails well furled,
And with eager eyes we will scan the skies
For the sight of a new-made world.

From the derelict barque of a sun gone dark,
Adrift in our fair ship's path,
A beacon star shall guide us afar
And afar from the Comet's wrath.

Oh, many a start of pulse and heart
We have felt at the sight of land;
But what would we do if the dream came true
And we sighted the Martian strand?

So, if some day you come and say,
"They are sailing to Mars, I hear,"
I want you to know I am ready to go—
All ready, my dear, my dear.

Hall's Distemper has led the way to a new era in house decoration—the era of brighter, cleaner and healthier homes.

It is the most durable of all decorations, lasting for years with freshness unimpaired, whereas wall-papers deteriorate from the first day by fading and accumulating dust and dirt.

Hall's Distemper is a thorough disinfectant, and is applied directly upon the wall, forming a hard surface, from which dust and dirt may be "spring-cleaned" by lightly sponging with warm water.

Hall's Distemper (Registered Trade Mark)

is a unique preparation and has the recommendation of leading sanitary authorities, architects, and decorators everywhere.

Far East News Notes

BANGKOK EXCITED OVER AMATEUR SHOW

Quite a flutter has been caused in Bangkok by a criticism which followed the production of a comic opera by local amateurs. A work entitled "Neptune's Bride" was assiduously rehearsed and produced on a lavish scale. Two of the Bangkok papers thought the production excellent; in the other a critic signing himself G. U. Y. was not so complimentary, and said things which appear to have been greatly resented. A writer in one of the other papers thereupon referred to the critic as "a cad and a liar," to which the critic retorted that the writer was "a dirty little fellow." Bangkok newspaper readers can certainly not complain that their journals are not interesting.

PANIC IN SCHOOL WHEN PORTRAIT IS STOLEN

It is reported by the Kobe Shimbun that the Imperial portrait belonging to the Oku-takeno Elementary School, Kinosaki-gun, Tajima province, was stolen, causing a panic in the school.

It seems that the portrait had been placed, on account of the incomplete arrangement of the institution, in a godown of an adjacent shrine.

In connection with this the prefectural criminal investigation authorities, the journal says, have been on the look-out for the arrest of the offender, and a suspect has recently been put under arrest. This man is a former teacher who was dismissed in April last owing to a difference of opinion with the head master. It is confessed by the former teacher that he made up his mind to conceal the Imperial photograph, with the intention of laying the blame at the head master's door.

The Kobe journal further reports that the portrait was discovered at a spot a little apart from the compound of the shrine mentioned. The offender was handed over to the Toyooka procurator's office.

SAKE SALES DOUBLE THOSE OF LAST YEAR

More than twice as much sake was sold in Tokio for the New Year's celebration this year than in 1920, the sales being 7,000 kegs, as against 2,200 kegs a year ago.

The low price of sake is taken to be the greatest contributing cause, although the Jiji says that the hoarding of sake by wine merchants has also had its effect.

INCREASE OF JAPANESE TROOPS IN SHANTUNG

The Chinese Government has received a telegram from Tsinan stating that under the pretext of exchanging garrisons, Japan has greatly increased the numbers of her troops at Fangtze, Chiaochow, Kaomi, Weihsien, Chowchun and other districts along the Kiaochow-Tsinan Railway zones.

Most of these fresh troops are stationed near the railway stations and have come from Japan. The increase of their numbers has attracted the serious attention of local authorities, and the gentry of various districts have petitioned the Central Government requesting that the numbers of Japanese troops along the railway should be restricted, otherwise serious troubles will be expected from the presence of so many foreign soldiers, who are not accustomed to respect Chinese life and property.—Yi Shih Pao.

PAINTING HATS AND BANCAS WITH OPIUM

Opium has become so common in some parts of the Philippines that it is used now for painting bancas, and cork hats; at least, that is the gist of a telegram received at Constabulary headquarters from Captain Francisco, provincial commander of Batangas.

On December 14, Captain Francisco's agents located two tins of the illicit drug in the possession of Pedro Rol and Pedro Magajis, residents of Lumaniak, Lian, Batangas. In all there were 490 grams of dope left, and no way of telling how much Rol used in painting his banca.

During the investigation it developed that sixty empty tins which at one time contained opium, were washed ashore. The drug is said to have been emptied at Lubang, Mindoro, where Major Bavierais made a haul, and the tins thrown into the sea. The tide carried them to the coast of Batangas. Two of the tins however, were left untouched. Totally ignorant of the value of the contents, Rol thought it would make a good substitute for paint. He lost no time in applying it to his craft. His friend Magajis came along the shore, witnessed him applying the fresh coat and asked Rol if he could spare some. His intention was to use it on the wounds of his brother-in-law who had met with an accident.

Magajis is also the owner of a pith helmet. He finished his medical attention and had some of the "paint" left. He thought it would waterproof his hat and used it accordingly. At least that is what they told the Constabulary sergeant who caught them with the contraband. Their stories rang true, and they were permitted to go free, and the dope was sent to Manila to be turned over to the opium committee at the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

PESOS 60,000,000 IS NEEDED FOR PHILIPPINES

"We need at least Pesos 60,000,000 to put the financial situation in the Philippines back to normal. If this money can be produced somewhere, the money stringency that is now felt in every part of the islands and which has a deadening effect upon the commerce, the industry, in fact, upon every line of business here, will have been solved. The government is doing everything it can and is ready to lend its cooperation to any institution in order that the effects of the financial crisis obtaining at present may not be too keenly felt, at least, until such a time as a permanent solution has been found to the problem."

These statements were made by Secretary Alberto Barretto commenting upon the financial crisis which is demoralising the business of the Philippines. Secretary Barretto states that many people do not realise how hard the problem is, as a result of which, they launch an unjustifiable attack upon the government. He said that the government is doing everything it can to put things back to normal, but, he said, this is not an easy task. "There is financial crisis everywhere," he said, "and this constitutes the biggest problem that the governments of the world have to face. I don't know of any government, so far, that can boast of having satisfactorily solved the problem."

FIND CORAL FOSSILS ON BAGUIO MOUNTAIN

Fossil coral has been collected at a height of 6,400 feet on the slopes of Mount Santo Tomas in Baguio, showing that that region was raised to that elevation from sea level in late geologic times. The fossils were collected by Dr. Warren Smith of the bureau of science and Dr. Roy E. Dickerson of the Richmond Petroleum company while on a combined vacation and business trip to the mountain capital. They revised some geological work which had been previously carried on there, and also visited the Benguet Consolidated Mines which Dr. Smith says are in a good working condition. In the lowest tunnels, however the presence of water causes a little difficulty in the operations, but it is well under control because there are sufficient pumps to drain the tunnels. The coming of the dry season ought to dry them, he said.

The Manila-Baguio road is in perfect condition, says Dr. Smith, as are the roads in and around Baguio.

Keeping The Child Well

By BRICE BELDEN, M.D.

The first step toward protecting your child against the children's diseases which every parent dreads is that of keeping the child's surroundings in a scrupulously clean condition. This does not mean that we must cultivate the insane fear of germs with which those people whom we term "cranks" are obsessed, or that we must constantly worry our child with the everlasting "don't."

In order to protect him against illness the child himself must be kept clean. To accomplish this without continually nagging at the child to keep his hands and clothes clean the best thing to do is to teach him at the earliest possible age that his hands must be washed frequently.

Persistent repetition of this ceremony before eating will make it a habit in a short time. The child should also be taught to keep his mouth clean by not picking up things from the floor and putting them into his mouth. The habit of keeping the mouth clean also includes methodical cleansing of the teeth immediately after getting up in the morning and again before going to bed.

Another important protection against illness is a regular examination of the teeth at the end of every third month in order that any small cavities may be filled before more serious trouble can start. The condition of the teeth has a very important bearing upon the digestion, and therefore upon the general health of both children and adults.

Everything in the surroundings of the child which might harbor dirt should be a color light enough to expose the slightest gathering of dust, and all carpets and other dust harboring articles of decoration or furniture should be entirely eliminated from the room in which the child is kept. The floors should be of hardwood or some smooth material, such as linoleum, which has no cracks in which the dust can remain. The furniture can be kept clean with a covering of light cretonne or chintz.

All public places should be carefully avoided, especially such sources of infection as trains, street cars and public gatherings. Another important thing to remember is that children should not be touched by strangers and should be taught to avoid this themselves.

DIAMOND IMPORTS DOUBLE

Shipments To U. S. In The Last Fiscal Year Reach $89,000,000

New York, December 12.—Imports of diamonds into the United States during the fiscal year 1920 were nearly double those of the previous year and more than three times the 1918 quota, according to figures contained in a review of the trade by the National Bank of Commerce. The value of the 1920 imports was close to $89,000,000.

"The United States is, and has been for many years, the chief consumer of diamonds, and practically the entire production of the better class of stones finds its market in this country," says the review. "Formerly the American demand was altogether for the cut stones, but in the last two decades a diamond-cutting industry of considerable importance has been established in New York City.

"Imports of uncut diamonds into the United States have greatly increased since the beginning of the war. In the round shapes American cut diamonds are considered superior to stones finished in Europe, and are in almost universal demand by the retail trade in the United States.

The diamond market is at present the most completely controlled of all commodity markets, the system of control having been greatly strengthened within the last two years. More than 90 percent of the world's present supply of diamonds comes from the mines of South Africa. These mines, after years of conflict, have been united, and their combined output is now marketed by the diamond syndicate of London.

"The value of diamonds has increased almost without a break since the beginning of control. Following the outbreak of the war the South African mines were not operated for a number of months. Later, however, a stimulated demand for diamonds appeared, caused by the buying of persons in the United States to whom the war had brought prosperity and by the chaotic conditions in Europe, which led many to exchange their worldly goods for diamonds, a commodity easy to conceal and relatively free from depreciation.

"During this period of buying, prices for certain grades went much above those set by the diamond syndicate. Since 1919, although the demand for diamonds has been the largest in history, production has been held down, due, it is commonly believed, to the threatened exhaustion of some of the mines. The diamond syndicate has recently announced that, in keeping with its policy in the past, production will be reduced if necessary to maintain its price levels."
